RUMORS ABOUT THE CABINET

THE ENROLLMENT BILL ADOPTED.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.
WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 27.

The absence of news from Gen. SHERMAN, and the reticence of the rebel press concerning the movements of their own troops, will naturally tend to breed apprehension in the minds of many in regard to the concentration of forces which the enemy is making in the hope of checking SHERMAN's march. It is well, therefore, to consider what number of troops, aside from LEE's old army, can be brought to resist our advancing columns.

I am in possession of some information concerning this matter, which will throw some light on the subject.

In the first place, it must be recollected that when BEAUREGARD assumed command of the rebel forces immediately in front of SHERMAN, he simply superseded HARDEE, who was ordered to Charleston; he in turn superseding Gen. SAM. JONES there. The force which BEAUREGARD took command of was simply that which escaped from Savannah with HARDEE, less 4,000 Georgia militia, who were disbanded on South Carolina soil and returned home. This force thus reduced did not positively exceed, even if it reached, 8,000 effective men. BEAUREGARD did not himself bring a man to swell the forces contesting SHERMAN's march; and it has been simply impossible for any of HOOD's old army to have reached him since, as SHERMAN has been directly between the two forces.

HARDEE had at Charleston and vicinity only two brigades, including everything, or what was equal to one division of five thousand men. These moved northward, and have probably formed a junction with BEAUREGARD. At Wilmington, BRAGG had not to exceed six thousand men, principally composed of HOKE's division. These have fallen back in the direction of Goldsboro. On the line of the railroad between Wilmington and Weldon, was stationed one brigade under Gen. BAKER, of North Carolina, not over three thousand strong, including conscripts, militia, and everything that could be dragged into the service.

At Salisbury there is also a small rebel force, two regiments I am told, which will be relieved from their duty of guarding prisoners by the exchange now going on. The entire infantry force that BEAUREGARD can therefore bring to resist SHERMAN, from any other point than Richmond, does not exceed at the outside twenty-two thousand men, even if it equals that.

In addition he has a corps of cavalry, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. WADE HAMPTON, and composed of two divisions; one commanded by Gen. WHEELER—the same who "whipped KILPATRICK" and then "fell back" so often in Georgia—numbering 4,000 men; and HAMPTON's old division from Virginia, now commanded by Gen. BUTLER, of South Carolina, numbering 3,500 men, or a total in the corps of 7,500 men. BEAUREGARD's entire force, exclusive of any aid from LEE, is therefore about 30,000 men of all descriptions, and no resources of militia, minute men, etc., for they don't raise them in North Carolina.

If SHERMAN forms a junction with SCHOFIELD, as he undoubtedly will, it is safe to say that the two armies combined will be far superior to BEAUREGARD's concentrated strength, and all the aid he is able to get from the army defending Richmond.

These figures are much nearer correct than the enemy would like to admit, and are based upon such data as to entitle them to full credence.

Vice-President STEPHENS, of the rebel Confederacy, was at Charlotte, N. C., on the 14th inst., on his way to Georgia, but tarried awhile to see how he could best dodge SHERMAN, who was directly in his path.

It is an important fact that the railroads between Augusta and Atlanta and between Macon and Atlanta are still unrepaired. The travel across the "Gaps" is by means of stages, wagons, &c. The "Southern Express Company" carry all their goods that way.

THE CABINET.

It is creditably reported to-night that the friends of Hon. ANDREW HARLAN have withdrawn his name as a candidate for the portfolio of the Interior Department, and will throw their influence in favor of Hon. A. W. RANDALL.

THE ENROLLMENT ADOPTED.

The House finished the Enrollment Bill to-day, after having spent three entire days upon it. The last four sections were adopted nearly as reported. The most important provision adopted to-day is that which disfranchises all deserters from the United States service who do not report within sixty days from the passage of the act. All persons enrolled and liable to draft who shall leave the country to avoid the draft are liable to the same penalties. During the debate quite a scene occurred between Mr. SCHENCK, who engineered the bill, and Mr. TOWNSEND, the Staten Island member, who fills the hiatus caused by the resignation of Mr. STEBBINS, resulting in Mr. TOWNSEND's discomfiture. Mr. SCHENCK is not the sweetest tempered member in the House, but he effectually cornered Mr. TOWNSEND on the question of "the force of language" in the bill.

THE LOAN BILL.

This evening the House is considering the Loan Bill, and has adopted the five-minute speech rule. Mr. STEVENS' substitute, fixing the rate of interest at eight per cent., will probably be rejected.

THE MILITARY NOMINATIONS.

The Senate Military Committee to-day passed upon all the military nominations before them, and will report them at once to the Senate. The committee have reported adversely in a large number of cases. It remains for the Senate to take such action as is thought proper.

UNION PRISONERS.

The House Military Committee have finished their investigations in regard to the treatment of our prisoners in the hands of the rebels, and Mr. DEMING will make a report upon the subject to the House. It is very elaborate, and enters largely into the whole subject.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The Ways and Means Committee have the Tariff Bill nearly ready to report. It makes very little alteration in the present schedule, and will not materially effect any of the leading articles.

THE LOUISIANA CASE.

It is exceedingly doubtful whether a vote will be reached in the Louisiana case before the adjournment. Messrs. SUMNER and WADE have given out that that measure shall not pass until it has been thoroughly discussed.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Monday, Feb. 27.

GEN. MOSQUERA IN WASHINGTON.

Gen. MOSQUERA, President of the Republic of Columbia, and its minister to London have arrived here, accompanied by Gen. SALGAR, Columbian Minister to Washington, and Señor BRUZERAL, the distinguished minister from Venezuela. These parties were the guests of Señor ROMERO, the Mexican Minister. Gen. MOSQUERA has been introduced to the Secretary of State and the President, and to-day left for City Point on a visit to Gen. GRANT's armies.

NEWS FROM REBEL SOURCES.

The Lines Before Petersburgh—From South Carolina—The Same Old Story—Speech of Gov. Vance.

VIRGINIA.

THE LINES BEFORE PETERSBURGH.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Feb. 25.

Unbroken quiet reigns along the lines on the north side of the James River.

The enemy concentrated on the new position on Hatcher's Run, during Tuesday and Wednesday, but nothing of consequence has grown out of the movement. They captured a portion of our picket line in this vicinity on Tuesday night, but the line was reëstablished by our forces the next morning.

From the Richmond Examiner, Feb. 25.

There was no fighting on the right yesterday, as had been expected; and the reported concentration of the enemy's troops near Hatcher's Run is still a subject of speculation. It appears that the Yankees captured a portion of our picket line on Sunday, which was recaptured by our forces the next day.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

NOT YET PERMITTED TO PRINT THE NEWS.

From the Richmond Examiner, Feb. 25.

We have been officially and properly requested to take no notice, for the present, of military affairs in the Carolinas; and, to make our compliance good, we omit all allusions to these from our report. Our readers will readily appreciate the motives of this reticence.

THE OCCUPATION OF COLUMBIA.

[The following statement differs from all previous accounts, which represented that Columbia was occupied after very little if any fighting.—ED. N. Y. TIMES.]

From the Richmond Whig, Feb. 25.

The contest for the possession of Columbia seems to have been a most obstinate one, and the resort can only be attributed to sheer numerical superiority; the fighting, according to accounts, having been carried on within the very streets of the city. We are informed that all or nearly all the government property was safely removed, and that whatever was destroyed by our authorities consisted of such materials as could be easily procured or replaced elsewhere.

NORTH CAROLINA.

PUBLIC MEETING IN GOLDSBORO—SPEECH OF GOV. VANCE.

From the Richmond Whig, Feb. 25.

Gov. VANCE addressed the people at Goldsboro, N. C., on Saturday last. The Journal gives a sketch of his remarks, from which we copy the following:

Gov. VANCE said that he was one of the last to give up the Union. But his State in solemn council gave it up forever, and he was ready to die for the pledge there made for us. Are you? he asked. [Cries of "We are" and cheers.] He sketched the history of the late attempt to stop the war, and proceeded to show that the terms of "unconditional submission" insisted upon by LINCOLN were terms which could only be accepted from or be accepted by dogs. He then pictured the awful and degrading consequences of submission.

At this point, Gov. V. drew a picture of that venerable, great man, Gen. LEE—"the greatest captain of the age"—bowing at the footstool of a low, blackguard Illinois cross-roads lawyer, to beg his life for the sake of his wife and children! Are there any men in North Carolina, he asked, willing to see this? [Sensation and cries of "never!"] If there be, exclaimed Gov. VANCE, then there are no words in the lexicon I use capable of depicting the base brutality of his soul. No, Sirs, we mean to resist such demands. To submit is no better than the extremist resistance, and he who submits is a mean dog. This is not the language of passion, but of fact. Gov. V. did not believe the people of North Carolina would submit. When they understand the true issue they will resist. What is property and your broad lands, he asked, if the man feels he is a slave and a dishonored dog?

But, continued the Governor, many will say "O, we are whipped already." "The enemy outnumber us." Well, said he, in some respects they do, and in some we outnumber them; and producing a hundred dollar Confederate Treasury note (which, he said, was certainly not worth much now-a-days,) he enumerated the States of New-York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, &c., with their dense population, and said he would wager his hundred dollar bill that North Carolina had more justices of the peace and more militia officers than all those populous States combined.

The Governor alluded to the difference between the spirit at home and that in the army. He had just come from the front of Gen. HOKE's lines. He spent several hours there, and conversed with almost every man he met with in the trenches. He found the men at the front all right, as they had ever been. The common expression was, "Governor, you take care of our folks at home as best you can, we'll fight this thing out yet!" [Prolonged cheers.] Yes, said the Governor, that is the voice of the brave fellows I saw there, half clad and badly fed, standing, many of them, knee-deep in the mud, their musket firmly clutched and their eye bright and clear, firmly bent upon the foe some fifty to seventy yards in front. The man who has suffered least grumbles most. Those at home who have given their sons and their homes and their all are this day more cheerful than any others. This is true, said the Governor; and he asked the grumblers, and weak-kneed if they were not ashamed.

In concluding, Gov. VANCE said our prospects were by no means gloomy. The recent peace effort will of necessity make us a unit. But there were symptoms of foreign complications, and these had much importance to us, though they must not be relied upon. And then there were the prayers of millions of the noblest women who ever knelt before the throne of God—prayers he believed which would not be disregarded. With oneness of soul and spirit it was impossible we could fail. But if we yield, it is possible our struggle will end in subjugation; but otherwise, the next proposition will be better than unconditional submission. Vice-President STEPHENS had gone home to canvass his State for a vigorous prosecution of the war. Our own Congressional delegation is a unit for the war to a successful termination. Gov. V. urged the people to action. Now was the time to go together and cease croaking. Those who can do nothing better at home, should cheer our men and cheer each other; and those who had the means must feed the families of our soldiers—"if you do not," exclaimed Gov. VANCE, "the land on which last year you raised such large crops, will be plowed this year by the foe."

THE RAID TOWARD TARBORO.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Feb. 25.

We learn that the raiding party of Yankee cavalry who were reported to be advancing by way of Tarboro, N. C., on the Weldon Railroad, have returned to Washington. We have been unable to obtain any information as to the amount of damage done by them.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

The Plan of the Approaching Campaign.

Occupation of Mobile the First Object.

Cahawba, Selma, Montgomery, and Columbus, Ga., the Next Points.

From Our Own Correspondent.
VICKSBURGH, Miss., Thursday, Feb. 16, 1865.

THE EXPEDITION.

As you have publicly announced the fact that an expedition (a portion of which is made up of the Sixteenth Corps, Gen. A. J. SMITH, and a division of cavalry from the Army of the Cumberland,) is on foot, the object of which is to penetrate the cotton States of the Gulf and place in Federal possession the cities of Mobile, Montgomery and Selma, Ala. I do not deem it unwise or indiscreet to transmit you some details of the object of the expedition, and its progress thus far.

I arrived at Paducah, from Nashville, on Friday noon, just in time to meet the fleet, and with it went to Cairo the same day. Here it took twenty-four hours to coal. The fast boats of the fleet arrived at Memphis on Sunday afternoon, but owing to the bad time made by slow steamers, and to the fact that two boats got aground, we did not leave that city until yesterday morning.

The whole fleet has arrived at this place, but one painful accident having occurred since it left Cairo—an ambulance, containing three soldiers, who were whiling away their time at cards, was blown overboard, and the three soldiers were drowned; they belonged to the Eighty-ninth Indiana, and were lost near Memphis.

The destination of the fleet, when it left Eastport, was New-Orleans. Here the men were to disembark and proceed to a place near Mobile, called Pascagoula, and join CANBY's army in the investment of the City of Mobile. A rumor now prevails that the latter city has been evacuated, and we are now waiting for the confirmation or contradiction of that report. If Mobile is evacuated, it is not improbable that this command may move by land directly east from this city, and join Gen. GORDON GRANGER's forces, with the object of striking at Selma.

There is a large amount of work to be performed this Spring in Gen. CANBY's department, but it is the intention of the Generals commanding to move rapidly and strike with stunning force. The objects of the expedition are as follows:

I.—THE CAPTURE OF MOBILE.

The first and foremost of the objects of this expedition is the national possession of Mobile. Either the capture of, or the evacuation of this city, is all the same to us, except if we capture it we will get several thousand prisoners and a large amount of ordnance. If the place is not evacuated, there are two divisions of troops there, two-thirds of whom have never been in action, numbering in all between four and five thousand men, under the command of Gen. DOBNER H. MAURY, a dapper little fellow much smaller in stature than WHEELER or VAN DORN. There are five general officers there, including Gen. CHALMERS, who commanded FORREST's cavalry on our right during the battle of Nashville, and who has just arrived at Mobile. Either the necessity for the evacuation of Mobile, or our capture of it, will be a terrible blow to the rebellion. Next to New-Orleans it is the most important seaport from the Piscataqua to the Rio Grande. In our possession, the entire territory of Middle and Northern Alabama and Middle and Northern Mississippi is at our mercy. Mobile is situated at the mouth of the Alabama River, near its entrance into the bay of the same name, thirty miles from the Gulf of Mexico and one hundred and sixty-seven from New-Orleans. It was, before the war, next to New-Orleans, the most extensive cotton port in the Union—more than 600,000 bales having been exported in a single year. The situation is considered very healthy, being built on a plain that rises near fifteen feet above tide-water. The population of Mobile before the war was estimated at about 30,000, and rapidly growing. It is the terminus of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, while its bay is the outlet of the most prolific cotton-growing regions in the South. If, as I said above, Mobile is not evacuated, you may look out for its fall in a short time. I learned in Memphis that all the citizens of Mobile between the ages of 18 and 60 were under arms, and that Gen. CHALMERS had been ordered to that point to take command of them.

II.—THE CAPTURE OF CAHAWBA, SELMA AND MONTGOMERY, ALA., AND COLUMBUS, GA.

The next movement will be toward Selma and Montgomery, Ala., both of which are situated on the Alabama River. The Alabama River is formed by the junction of the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers, about ten miles above Montgomery. The Tallapoosa takes its rise in Paulding County, Georgia, about 250 miles from its mouth, and is navigable between 40 and 50 miles for small steamers. The Coosa rises in Georgia, also; is 350 miles in length, and navigable for small boats 175 miles from its junction with the Tallapoosa. The Alabama River is a very crooked stream, but is navigable at all seasons of the year for the largest boats, except in times of great drought. The country through which it runs is exceedingly rich, occupied by extensive cotton plantations, and large tracts of valuable timber.

Cahawba, on the Alabama River, 236 miles from Mobile, was before the war fast becoming a prominent town, and was a place of considerable trade. Its prominence just now arises from the fact that there are several thousand Federal prisoners caged there in a starving condition.

Selma, on the same river, is 252 miles from Mobile; is situated in a populous and fertile region, and does a tremendous manufacturing business for the Southern Confederacy. There are several foundries, an establishment for the manufacture of small arms, a horse-shoe mill, a shot and shell works, and two or three shoddy manufactories. This was, next to Atlanta and Augusta, Ga., the most important manufacturing town in the Cotton States. The terminus of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad is at Selma. Before the war its population was well up to 3,000, which has been doubled since the existence of the rebellion. Selma will probably be the last ditch in Alabama.

Columbus, Ga., on the State line, is situated upon the Apalachicola River, and by rail is about eighty miles from Montgomery. It is due east from the latter-named place, and across the country is but sixty miles. Montgomery once in our possession, the fate of Columbus may be easily predicted. Columbus has always been a place of more or less river and railroad importance. Vast quantities of shot and shell have been manufactured here during the war, while half of the brass cannon used by the enemy have been cast in its foundries. Columbus contains a population of nearly six thousand people, half of whom are Northern mechanics.

There are thousands of loyal people scattered about in the State of Alabama. We hold Stevenson, Huntsville, Florence and Decatur, in the north. Let us get possession of Mobile, Selma and Montgomery in the south, and Alabama will be as thoroughly wrenched from the enemy as Tennessee is, and Mississippi will be left out in the cold, with no one to heed her forlorn situation.

III.—TO CLEAN OUT HOOD'S ARMY.

The above caption would seem to indicate that one of the objects of the new campaign is to clean out HOOD's army. Really, the organization of the rebel Army of Tennessee, lately known as HOOD's army, has ceased to exist. Strictly reliable reports state that Gen. FRANK CHEATHAM's corps, numbering six thousand men, and STEPHEN D. LEE's corps, numbering five thousand, and BUFORD's and HUME's divisions of FORREST's cavalry, four thousand men, have been sent east to join HARDEE in his operations against SHERMAN. This fact was known by Gen. THOMAS two weeks ago. All deserters, many of whom are Tennesseans, from CHEATHAM's corps, agree in the confirmation of this report. This leaves in this section ALEXANDER STUART's corps, numbering about five thousand men, and RODDY's and CHALMER's cavalry divisions of about the same strength—all under the command of Gen. RICHARD TAYLOR. STEWART's corps has left the Mississippi, and is moving toward Selma, Ala. The cavalry, with the exception of one brigade about a thousand strong, under Col. JESSE FORREST, have already arrived at Selma and Montgomery. Col. FORREST has been left to roam at large through Northern Mississippi and Northern Alabama. A Federal brigade, two thousand strong, under Gen. KNIPE, which will leave Nashville at the latter end of this month, will attend to Mr. FORREST, however.

If the enemy evacuate Mobile, and escape with his garrison to Selma, he will no doubt be joined at that place by TAYLOR's forces, and what militia may be at present under arms in Central and Southern Alabama. If so, he will have an army of about 16,000 veterans and 6,000 militia—22,000 in all. It is not necessary to add that we can outnumber him in men and material, and it is possible—it is really probable—that a general engagement of a sanguinary nature may take place in Central or Southern Alabama. Time will settle this speculation.

THE REBEL TRANS-MISSISSIPPI ARMY.

If everything works well, KIRBY SMITH's army will be attended to before next Summer. This will require two expeditions—one up the Red River and one up the Rio Grande. All of the munitions of war, in fact everything but food for this army, is carried up the Rio Grande by European vessels, while Texas and Eastern Louisiana furnish the bread and meat. KIRBY SMITH has not got a very large army, and can easily be cleaned out, when a sufficient force of Federal troops are ready to get to work about the matter right.

OUR RETURNED PRISONERS.

Names of Five Hundred Released Officers Sent to Annapolis.

The Richmond and Danville Prisons Empty.

Col. Mulford's Arrangements for Continuing the Exchange.

The Daily Mail of the Commissioners of Exchange.

From Our Special Correspondent.
VARINA LANDING, Va., Friday, Feb. 24, 1865.

You will be glad to receive from me the accompanying complete list of Union officers who have just been released from the rebel prisons at Danville and Richmond, and sent to Annapolis. This list exhausts the names of our gallant men who have survived the horrors of a long captivity in these notorious rebel cities. Its publication will send a thrill of joy to many hearts among your readers, in anticipation of soon meeting those who have been "lost and are found again."

I had a conversation to-day with that noble-hearted man, whose name is loved and revered everywhere throughout the North, Col. JOHN E. MULFORD. He is the very incarnation of happiness, now that the result for which he has so long been praying, and laboring and hoping—the general exchange of prisoners—is in process of accomplishment. For the present, Col. MULFORD has established his headquarters at Varina Landing, on the James River, just below Dutch Gap, and he is up to his elbows in work. His mail-matter, which all through the Summer months did not exceed the moderate quantity of 400 letters per day, has now increased to the enormous figures of 800 to 1,000 of the most affecting sort of missives from the friends of prisoners, imploring, begging, entreating, and beseeching that special attention be given to the case of this officer and that private, whose peculiar claims to be released are set forth in touching and affectionate language. Of course the thorough examination of this colossal mail, and answering all these earnest inquiries in detail, is simply a matter of impossibility, although Col. MULFORD makes strenuous efforts to relieve anxiety and give words of cheer as far as he is able. Resting for a moment from the perusal of this mass of correspondence and the jotting upon the margin of each letter a few notes, meeting the inquiry of every particular case, for his clerks to transcribe and put into shape—a work in which he is now almost constantly engaged. Col. MULFORD said to me, "I am reluctant to stop this work even for a moment. I expect there is many a poor wife or mother whose husband or son languishes in captivity, who would reproach me for spending these few moments that I am giving to you, while their unanswered letters are growing dusty around me. But, thank God, I am answering these letters now by thousands daily, in just the best way of answering them—by sending home the men." You may be sure that I took the hint, and cut short the interview, not, however, feeling snubbed in the slightest, for I flatter myself that my acquaintance with the Colonel is of too long standing not to know that my visits are welcome whenever he has breathing time.

Before I left he told me with great exultation of his having received every man from the Richmond and Danville prisons, and of his arrangements for the delivery of those from Columbia, Salisbury and a part of those from Florence, at an early date. Most of these will be returned to us at Wilmington. Those in the Georgia and Alabama prisons will be delivered into our welcome keeping at Mobile, and those in prisons west of the Mississippi will be received at the mouth of the Red River. To-day 1,000 of our poor fellows were delivered from that hell upon earth at Florence, which was so vividly described in your columns in December last by one of your correspondents. Col. MULFORD also informed me that he had perfected arrangements with Judge OULD for the release of the masters and crews of vessels and all Northern citizens held in durance by the rebels. It will thus be seen that the state of the exchange question is eminently satisfactory, and the public may rest assured that the work of rescuing our men will be prosecuted as rapidly as willing hearts and hands can effect it, until not a single one of the soldiers of the Republic remain in captivity. As Col. MULFORD exultingly remarked to me: "Gen. GRANT is letting me go it 'wide open,' (to use an engineering term,) and gives me all I ask for," an assertion sufficient in itself to show that the work goes bravely on.

Letter from Secretary Fessenden.

On Tuesday last, the following letter from Hon. WILLIAM P. FESSENDEN, accepting the office o United States Senator, was laid before the Maine Legislature:

To the Legislature of Maine:

GENTLEMEN: I have received from the Governor a certificate of my election as a Senator of the United States for six years, commencing on the 4th day of March next.

This renewed proof of confidence on the part of the people of Maine, through their representatives, has afforded me the highest gratification. No man is fit to occupy an eminent public position who is not content to find his best reward in the approbation of those whose servant he is, and of his own conscience. I am grateful, gentlemen, for the honor conferred, and more for the evidence it affords that the State I have been proud to represent in the legislative councils of the nation, is well satisfied with my endeavors in executing the trust committed to my care, to protect its interests and uphold its dignity.

I left the Senate before the close of my second term, in obedience to what seemed to be a necessity. I shall return to it with the consciousness that, however, imperfectly, my best efforts have been given to the discharge of onerous and responsible duties. In again confiding to me the honor of our noble State, as one of its representatives, you have shown that my efforts to serve our beloved country, in the place to which I was thus called have been satisfactory to the people you represent.

I will venture to express the hope that hereafter, as hereto, no act of mine will tarnish the lustre which their patriotism and devotion to the Union, and to freedom, have won for the people we are so proud to serve.

The term of President LINCOLN's administration, now about closing, has been marked by extraordinary events. It will form a remarkable epoch in history. According as men have played their parts in it—as they have arrayed themselves in the struggle which has enchained the attention of the world, and the result of which must seriously affect the welfare of ages to come—will be the judgment passed upon them, either as masses or as individuals. Let it be our boast that from the beginning Maine was found true to the cause of human liberty; that at no moment did her people falter or faint; that no sacrifice could shake her purpose or weaken her faith. And may the future prove as the past has proved, that in her estimation, a cause holy enough to fight for, is never to be abandoned. With great respect, your obedient servant,

W. P. FESSENDEN.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ASSOCIATION FOR IMPROVING THE CONDITION OF THE POOR.—While recent calls for charitable aid from Savannah and from other distant parts of the country, have been cheerfully responded to by our citizens, the Board of Managers deeply regret the necessity of a special appeal in behalf of the poor at our own doors.

The usual increase of destitution in winter has been greatly aggravated by the extreme severity of the season and other causes. Out-door labor is interrupted, manufacturers and contractors are receiving but few orders, and many of the largest establishments are working on short time, or have discharged their hands. Sickness, also from congestive and typhus fevers, small-pox, and other diseases, which extensively prevail in the poorest sections of the city, has contributed to produce a larger amount of pinching poverty and poignant suffering than has been known before in many years.

But, besides these ordinary causes of indigence and distress, several NEW CLASSES of the necessitous, growing out of the war, have been thrown upon our sympathy and assistance. Among these are the families of soldiers who have no claim on the city or county bounty, discharged and disabled soldiers and families who have not obtained their arrearages or pensions, and the widows and orphans of soldiers who have fallen in their country's defence.

Add to these the enormous expenses of living. Every one knows that a dollar currency is not worth more than the fifty cents of former years. Hence, while the contributions are above the usual average, they are not in the ratio of their enhanced values, and fall far below the actual demand. More than FIFTEEN THOUSAND PERSONS are now aided by the association, and, to meet the existing necessity, TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS beyond the present receipts will be required.

On this brief statement the board rest their appeal. As they never obtrude the objects of the association on public notice, except urged by its necessities, they trust the response given will enable it to meet the present temporary pressure. They plead not for the idle and dissolute, but for the unfortunate and deserving providentially thrown upon charity. Those who succored famine-stricken Ireland and freighted ships for the starving operatives of England, will not, it is believed, close their ears to the cry of distress which comes from the poverty-stricken and wretched at our own doors.

Contributions may be sent to R. B. MINTURN, Treasurer, No. 78 South-st; BROWN BROTHERS & CO., No. 56 Wall-st; R. M. HARTLEY, No. 89 Bible House, Astor-place, or to any of the officers or authorized collectors. By order of the board.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

In our Washington news will be found some very interesting and important statements, based on reliable sourcess of information, respecting the strength and composition of the rebel armies opposed to Gen. Sherman. A glance at the figures given in our correspondents' dispatch, will show that Sherman's army is far superior in point of numbers to any force that can be brought against him.

The Louisville Journal says it has good reason to state that the rebels are expecting very soon to "startle the whole country and astonish the world." The Richmond papers said the same thing six months ago.

Gen. Grant does not want men for short terms. After Wilmington was taken, Gov. Fenton offered to the War Department ten regiments of the State National Guard for one hundred days to garrison forts, &c. The offer was referred to the Lieutenant-General, who respectfully declined it.

Maj.-Gen. Washburne has been ordered to command at Memphis. He has been there as commander heretofore, and is very welcome now.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday a note was read from the President, declining to furnish a statement of all the men raised by the several States during the war. A House bill to protect emigrants from being decoyed into the army or navy was reported favorably. It was voted that documents now accumulated in the storeroom be distributed among the members of the present Congress. Some discussion, followed upon a resolution to purchase Mr. Powell's historical picture for $25,000, but the matter was not settled. The question of the recognition of the Government of Louisiana coming up, a brief discussion ensued, in which several Senators spoke in opposition to the idea, Mr. Sumner especially denouncing the so-called government in emphatic teams. On a motion to postpone this (the Louisiana) question and take up the Tax Bill, the vote was yeas 24, nays 11. The Senate adopted the report of their Conference Committee on the Army and Navy appropriations, and other bills were passed. The Tax Bill then came up and was denounced by Garrett Davis, who moved its indefinite postponement. After his speech the Senate enjoyed their recess. In the evening the Tax Bill was taken up, and Er. Sherman made an elaborate speech.

In the House, the amended Tariff Bill was reported and made the special order for the evening. The Fortification Bill came back from the Senate reduced on all items 50 per cent., and the House concurred therein. The Legislative and Executive Appropriation Bill was taken up, and one amendment was made to appropriate $160,000 for the Congressional Library, and another that Congressional proceedings shall be published in the Globe on the day following the sessions. The next amendment was one made by the Senate, adding to this bill the Deficiency Bill, except the item of $38,000 for extra compensation to employes of the House. This the House rejected by a vote of 75 to 54, and so the question remains open. On the Enrollment Bill, a motion of Mr. Chanler, of this city, to repeal all acts authorizing the raising of troops by conscription was voted down 95 to 27. The bill was finally completed and adopted.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Stock Exchange was firm and higher, and the Gold Room 2 ⅌ cent. up, yesterday. Money easy. Exchange on London 108 for Gold.

General business exhibited very little animation yesterday. Flour and Grain were without important changes. Provisions were in more request, including Pork at a partial advance of 25c. @50c. ⅌ bbl. Whisky attracted more attention at $2 26. Ashes, Cotton and Petroleum, unchanged. The Freight Market quiet.

The live stock markets, yesterday, were well supplied with beef cattle, and sales were active although the general quality of the bullocks on sale was very inferior. But few extra cattle were offered, and these eagerly taken at last week's rates. Common cattle sold from ½c to 1c. ⅌ ℔. lower than at the previous market. Prices were about as follows: Extra Beeves, 24c. @25c. ⅌ ℔, estimated net weight; first quality, 21c.@22c. ⅌ ℔.; common to good at, 17c @20c. ⅌ ℔., and poor to medium, 12c.@16c. ⅌ ℔. Veal Calves are in light receipts with good demand at, 12c.@14. ⅌ ℔. for poor to good, and 11c. ⅌ ℔. for common. Sheep are selling about ½c. ⅌ ℔. below last week's rates, and Live Hogs about ½c. ⅌ ℔. lower.

The Board of Councilmen met yesterday. A communication was received from the committee of citizens who are making arrangements for celebrating our recent victories, on the 4th proximo, inviting the Board to coöperate with them. In connection therewith, Councilmen Robinson offered a resolution to the effect that the date selected is too near to admit a becoming celebration, and that a joint committee be appointed to celebrate the 13th day of April next the anniversary of the birth-day of Thomas Jefferson; that a sum of $—— be appropriated therefor. Both papers were referred to the Committee on National affairs and the Board adjourned.

Mr. John Inman Cunningham, died of concussion of the brain from an accidental fall in the Brevoort House early yesterday morning.

We have intelligence from Havana that Arguelles, whose case excited so much interest a few months ago, has been sentenced to the chain-gang for eight years.

Col. Baker, Chief of the War Department Special Agency in this city, appeared before Judge Barnard yesterday, and made return to the writ which the Judge issued on Saturday, demanding the body of Abraham Lyons. On motion of Mr. Dittenhoefer, counsel for Lyons, the hearing was postponed to this morning. Col. Baker made several arrests yesterday, but the details are not ready for publication.

The deaths in New-York, during the past week, were 554—133 men, 137 women, 159 boys and 125 girls—an increase of 57 upon the mortality of the previous week, and a decrease of 4 as compared with the mortality of the corresponding week of 1864. Of the deceased 262 were children under 5 years of age. The mortality by the principal diseases was as follows:—Consumption 99; inflammation of the lungs 50; small-pox 30; infantile convulsion 30; infantile marasmus 28; scarlet fever 16; typhus fever 13; typhoid fever 9; deaths from external causes 34; among which are reported 10 deaths from old age, 4 premature births and 6 killed by accidents. The deaths from small-pox during the previous week were 35.

The commencement of the New-York Opthalmic Hospital took place last evening at the Chapel in the University on Washington-square. Eleven gentlemen of the graduating class received diplomas, when, after a speech by James T. Brady, Esq., the meeting adjourned.

The Committee of Arrangements of the National Celebration of our late victories met yesterday at the Astor House. It is anticipated that all the military, firemen, civic and Masonic societies of this city and Brooklyn will take part in the celebration, and among the invited guests will be Gov. Fenton, Lieut.-Gov. Alvord, Speaker Haskins, Gen. Dix, Admiral Spaulding and the officers of the Navy-yard. The banks, insurance offices, public schools, &c., will be requested to observe the day as a holiday, and the shipping in the harbor to display their flags. Mayor Gunther, it is understood, declines to participate in the rejoicings.

The Young Men's Christian Association held a monthly meeting at their rooms, No. 161 Fifth-avenue, Vincent Colyer, Esq., Vice-President, in the chair. An essay was delivered by Rev. T. Ralston Smith, entitled "Diversity the Ground of Responsibility." Several interesting reports were read, showing the working of the association.

Nearly three and a half millions of subscriptions to the new loan were received yesterday.

The Charity Ball for the benefit of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, which took place at the Academy of Music last evening, was a brilliant affair. The building was appropriately decorated, the attendance large, and the toilettes superb. It is said to have been the finest gathering seen in this city since the Russian Ball was given.

The New-York State Volunteer Institute had an interesting entertainment last evening at the Cooper Institute, under the management of Col. Young and his lady, of the Suspension Bridge Military School. Gen. Hall presided. The entertainment was given with the view of obtaining funds to found a school and home for the sons of soldiers who have fallen in the present war. The Second Massachusetts Artillery Band, en route for Wilmington, assisted. About fifty of the boys from the school at Suspension Bridge were present, and underwent drill in infantry and military tactics.

The Question of Reconstruction in the Present Congress.

Alexander the Great apportioned his Empire on his death-bed; Peter the Great fixed Russian policy in his will. But this Thirty-eighth Congress is not Great. It will do well to finish its dying without any further attempt to dictate to the future. The restless craving to settle just how the Southern States shall be restored had better be composed into a serious and humble attention to its own final concerns. The country now asks nothing better of it than that it should die with decency.

The real responsibilities connected with the work of reconstruction, rest with the next Congress. Such bills as that "providing civil governments for States subverted by the rebellion," and such resolutions as that admitting the Louisiana claimants to seats in the Senate, are simply calculated to forestall its proper duties, and to produce embarrassment and mischief. Reconstruction is the sequence of the military work. So long as the military work is in progress, military government must prevail, as an indispensable part of the military means. When the military work is at an end this necessity ceases, and some sort of civil rule must be established. But what that rule is to be—how instituted and how applied—must depend largely upon the disposition cherished by the Southern people after active hostilities are over. If sound reason and right feeling govern them, and they are willing to resume and fulfill their constitutional relations in good faith, their full reinstatement will be easily and quickly accomplished. If, on the other hand, they remain contumacious and disloyal, there will be no alternative but to subject them to disabilities and restraints until a different spirit possesses them. It is impossible to determine in advance in what temper our crushing the rebellion will leave the South. This cannot be known except through actual observation after the rebellion is crushed. It is absurd, then, for the present Congress to attempt to fix a plan of reconstruction without a knowledge of this prime condition.

The probability is, that in the end it will be found wise to adopt no specific plan, and to leave the case of each individual State to be determined upon according to its condition and circumstances. The war has borne very unequally upon the different Southern States. Some have paid the penalty in disorganization and depopulation far more than others; and requirements which were based upon the census of 1860, or upon any standards as existing previous to the war, might be ever so just and expedient in one case that would be grossly oppressive or altogether impracticable in another. We do not believe that the time will ever come for setting up a Procrustean bed to which every State must be inexorably fitted before being received back into the embrace of the Union. It is certain, at least, that nothing of the kind is called for yet.

The cause of the impatience which has been manifested in the present Congress to deal with this matter of reconstruction, has been two-fold—a desire to secure the votes of States for the early ratification of the Constitutional Amendment, and a desire to block forever the projects of extremists for the permanent conversion of the States, whose people have rebelled, into provincial dependencies. Neither of these motives ought to be sufficient. There is no great urgency for the immediate consummation of the Amendment. Its ratification by any State one year or even two years hence will be just as valid as if made to-morrow; and there is not the slightest danger that slavery will acquire new strength in the meantime. The fact is as patent as the sun that the institution is fast losing all its little remaining vitality under the mere wear and tear of the war; and the rebels themselves are preparing to give it its coup de grace by arming the slaves. The Constitutional Amendment, by the time the war ends and reconstruction becomes a practical question, will find itself opposed by nothing more than a shadow even in the South. As for the other motive—the desire of heading off the men who would keep the South in special subordination in order to manage the relations between the blacks and whites according to their peculiar ideas—there will be abundant time to settle this matter in harmony with our constitutional system, after the war closes. Nor need there be any fear that the next Congress will be any less competent than the present to form correct conclusions. The fatal tendency of any attempt to keep the South in permanent wardship for any such purpose will be just as apparent then as now. We believe that, in fact, the progress of events will make it too plain to be doubted by any man in his senses.

There is every reason to believe that the war will reach its final close before the regular meeting of the next Congress, in December. The Southern people will then have their eyes clear from the smoke of the strife, and will, we trust, discover that the only safe and honorable path before them is the path which leads straightest back into the Union. If they shall determine to take that path in a new spirit of loyalty and genuine good faith, most surely the true policy of our Government must be rather to supply facilities than to raise obstructions.

North Carolina.

We remarked the other day that the authorities and people of North Carolina seemed to be awaiting the arrival of Sherman's army with perfect composure. Since then we have published a tepid proclamation from Gov. Vance calling for assistance, and in this issue we give a chilly speech that the same functionary delivered at Goldsboro some ten days since. Gov. Vance gave it as his unimpassioned opinion, that "he who submits is a mean dog," and then mildly declared that he "did not believe the people of North Carolina would submit." He at once guarded and qualified this remark, however, by adding that "when they understand the true issue, they will resist." He soon thought it necessary to further bolster up his assertion, for it would seem he saw incredulity in the faces of his listeners. "You think," said he, "that I am speaking now to encourage you, and not to tell you what I expect." He asserted, however, in the high-flying style of Bunkum, that he did expect certain things, if certain things were so and so. The most decidedly cheerful part of this decidedly cheerless speech, is where, immediately after making the able remark that "the voice of the people is the voice of God," Vance goes on to exclaim: "Four hundred thousand men—living men—were on the muster-rolls of the Confederacy, and almost one-half of them were absent." We cannot, of course, dispute the proposition as to the "voice of the people," but we would like to know how we shall interpret the "voice" of the Southern people, if those of them who remain at home spend their time in dolefully repeating to each other "we are nearly whipped,"—if furthermore, the "women of the country" will not stop "writing letters to their husbands in the army, making them discontented;" and if, beside all this, two hundred thousand out of the four hundred thousand troops in the rebel armies are "absent"—not in mind, but in body; in other words, are deserters, and that, too, at this Confederate crisis; we should certainly say that under such circumstances the Confederate "voice" is not as clear and harmonious in its tones as the occasion and the comparison demand.

Though Gen. Sherman was on the border of North Carolina while this speech was being delivered, Gov. Vance thought the Confederate prospect "by no means gloomy." He relied upon popular unity, foreign complications and prayer. The popular unity of the South is evidenced by the statements previously made by Vance; the "foreign complications" are waiting to hear the news from Grant and Sherman; and the rebels cannot complain if their prayers are answered by the gift of what they really require rather than of what they foolishly ask.

Gov. Vance evidently expects the processes of reconstruction and pacification to go on in North Carolina, with a rapidity which the most sanguine among us has never hoped for. He says that if the folks in North Carolina do not their duty, the "land on which last year you raised such large crops will be plowed this year by the foe." This is looking to quick work on the part of our brave soldiers. They are not only to harvest the rebels at short notice, but they are actually to be behind the plow as husbandmen, in season to get in the Spring crops of North Carolina.

Accounts from Wilmington, the chief city in North Carolina, represent that when our troops entered there a week ago from to-day, they were received with popular demonstrations of welcome, and even Mayor Dorsen, himself a Union man, assured Gen. Schofield that to the best of his knowledge the majority of the inhabitants were loyal and Union-loving. This completely agrees with the anticipations expressed by Gen. Sherman, and is virtually borne out by the dismal speech of Gov. Vance. The wide existence of such a sentiment will greatly aid Gen. Sherman's army in its march through North Carolina.

Reform in Our Local Government.—The committee appointed by the State Senate is pushing its inquiries into the management of our city affairs with ability, independence and success—if that can be called success which simply convicts us of having no City Government that deserves the name. We have reported the testimony they have taken from day to day, and although it develops the mingled imbecility and corruption which pervade the whole machinery of our local rule, nobody seems to have been in the least surprised by its revelations. The only comment made is—"Oh, we knew all that before."

What we need most is not light but action; and what we fear is, that we shall not get it. Our city authorities and their allies in the Legislature would gladly keep investigating committees at work all Winter, in spite of the corruptions they may disclose, if they can only thereby stave off legislative action until the end of the session. There is danger that the friends of reform in the Legislature may fall into this trap this Winter; they may spend so much time in investigations which are utterly needless, that they will have none left for passing acts of relief which are absolutely indispensable. One or two measures of the utmost importance to the city have already been postponed, under pretence of wanting information, until the enemies of reform are beginning to exult over their anticipated defeat.

The Health Bill is one of these measures. There is not a well-informed man in this city who does not know that the existing system is an utter nuisance, and that every consideration of the public welfare demands that it should be replaced by one better adapted to the necessities of the case. Efforts have been regularly made every year to reform it, but they have been regularly thwarted by the City Inspector's office and the swarm of officials whom it supports. The same parties are at work now, with equal energy and with high hopes of success. We hope the Legislature will not delay action longer on this subject.

The Fire Department Bill is another measure requiring prompt and decided action. The leading facts of the case are well known, and demonstrate the necessity of a change. If the Legislature wait until every charge has been proved, or until every objector has been heard, so much of the session will be exhausted as to render action this Winter out of the question. There are always hundreds and thousands of persons interested in the perpetuation of old abuses; and these men are always fertile in expedients for delaying and thwarting action which threatens to break their hold on the public purse. The public interest demands prompt and energetic action, and we trust the responsible majority in the Legislature will not hesitate to take it.

Our Loyal Prisoners—Progress of Exchange.—Under the judicious and energetic direction of Col. Mulford, the exchange of prisoners goes on bravely. We publish to-day, a list of the names of the 500 officers who were received within our lines below City Point on the 21st and 22d inst., and since then, forwarded to Annapolis. With this last installment, the Richmond military prisons have all—thank Heaven!—been emptied of their loyal inmates. Col. Mulford has also perfected his arrangements for the delivery of those who have been in prison at Columbia, Salisbury, and a part of those at Florence. The place named for this exchange is Wilmington. The Georgia and Alabama prisoners are to be delivered at Mobile; those west of the Mississippi at the mouth of Red River. Col. Mulford, moreover, has not limited his exertions to the matter of an exchange of purely military prisoners. He has included in his arrangements the release of loyal masters and crews of vessels, and of not a few private citizens as well. The point at which Col. Mulford has established his office on the James River (Varina) places him in easy communication with the Lieutenant-General, and the public need not be specially advised of the fact that Gen. Grant extends the utmost facilities necessary to make the exchange as perfect and as speedy as the circumstances will admit.

The City Mortality.—The weather during the past ten days has been altogether as seasonable as our experience would lead us to expect. Yet, the mortality of the past week, it will be seen, shows an increase of fifty-seven upon the mortality of the previous week. That increase is unquestionably due to the condition of the streets, wherein the daily accumulation of garbage and every sort of filth is altogether frightful. It is surely time that the Board of Health were convened, or the Mayor ought to give the citizens some reason for delaying a step which every succeeding day renders more imperatively necessary.

The Bankrupt Bill.—Many of our business citizens still refuse to believe that the Senate has finally decided the fate of the Bankrupt Bill. They are utterly at a loss to understand the grounds on which the opposition to the measure purports to be based. If we had any belief that the bill has not purposely been kept back in committee till this late hour, in order to make a disposition of it without bringing it to the test of a direct vote, we should make another appeal to the Senate on this all-important question. A measure of commercial relief, such as is prayed for, can only be temporarily defeated. Its refusal now is simply trifling with the clearly expressed wishes of the vast majority of our loyal citizens. At best the opponents of the measure can only delay it. They can neither stop the agitation, nor finally defeat the measure.

Getting Light.—The Richmond Dispatch does not see that the flight of the rebel troops from Charleston was a "blessing in diguise," or that it was a part of a brilliant plan concocted long ago. It had the courage to declare on Saturday last that Charleston fell "because our own (rebel) military blunders permitted him (Sherman) to make strategic combinations which rendered it inevitable."

We certainly thought it remarkable that after Beauregard's late brilliant campaign in South Carolina, which consisted simply in skedaddling from all parts of the State as we advanced, he should suddenly be superseded in his command by Gen. Jo. Johnston. "Military blunders" explain the matter perhaps.

The Election in Tennessee.—On the 22d inst. the people of Tennessee voted on the Free Constitution adopted a few weeks since by the State Convention. Thus far the returns show no opposition. The Nashville Times estimates the vote in Middle Tennessee at 14,000 in favor to just about none against. In West Tennessee the rebel guerrillas will probably interfere materially with the voting, but of course there will be no nays. East of Knoxville the vote will be all in favor.

Mr. Powell, of Kentucky, (Dem.,) from the Committee on Printing, reported a resolution that all undistributed documents now in store shall be distributed among the members of the present Congress; which was adopted.

MR. POWELL'S PICTURE.

Mr. Collamer, of Vermont, (Union,) called up the resolution to authorize a contract with William H. Powell, of Ohio, for painting a national picture, at a cost of $25,000.

Mr. Sumner, of Massachusetts, (Union,) offered a proviso, that in the National Capitol, dedicated to the National Union, there shall be no picture representing any victory in battle with our fellow-citizens.

Mr. Wilson, of Massachusetts, (Union,) was opposed to this. He wanted to see the noble deeds of our army and navy commemorated upon every foot of territory in the nation.

Mr. Collamer spoke of the propriety of commemorating the heroic deeds of our navy. This had never been done; while our eminent statesmen and lawyers had been chiseled in marble and painted on canvas.

The morning hour expired and the above subject went over.

Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, (Union,) moved to take up the Tax Bill.

THE LOUISIANA QUESTION.

Several Senators desired to call up the Louisiana question.

Mr. Sherman was willing to have the Louisiana question taken up, provided it could be disposed of in an hour or two.

Mr. Sumner answered Mr. Sherman that no vote could be taken on the Louisiana question within the time he mentioned.

Mr. Trumbull, of Illinois, (Union,) said there could have been a vote taken on the Louisiana resolution on Saturday night, but for the factious opposition of one-third of the Senate.

Mr. Wade, of Ohio, (Union,) said he was opposed now, as he had been always, to forcing a Constitution upon the people of any State, as the resolution of the Judiciary Committee proposed. It was an attempt such as he resisted when made years ago, by the friends of the Lecompton Constitution. It would be an insult to New-York, to Ohio, and to Illinois, to admit Senators from Louisiana, who represented nobody and nothing.

Mr. Howard, of Michigan, (Union,) said the voice of the people had not been heard on this subject, and he thought it ought, therefore, to be postponed until next Winter.

Mr. Sprague, of Rhode Island, (Union,) was opposed to the Louisiana resolution, because he had information to the effect that twenty-five or thirty members of the Legislature of Louisiana were office-holders under the Government of the United States or of the State of Louisiana, which was the same thing.

Mr. Sumner had heard a responsible gentleman, who was in Louisiana when the State Government was formed, say it was a stupendous hoax.

Mr. Grimes, of Iowa, (Union,) said if the Senate would give him a committee, he would prove that the votes of the outlying precincts were cast by disabled soldiers and others who were carried from New-Orleans to the polls on army transports, and carried back again after voting, in the same way.

Mr. Sumner—I denounce this pretended State Government of Louisiana as nothing more than a seven-month child, begotten by the bayonet in continual conjunction with the spirit of caste. This is the whole case.

The question was then taken on postponing the Louisiana resolution, and taking up the Tax Bill, which was decided in the affirmative; yeas 24, nays 11.

Yeas—Messrs. Anthony, Brown, Buckalew, Carlile, Chandler, Clark, Collamer, Conness, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Farwell, Foster, Grimes, Harlan, Henderson, Hendricks, Howard, Howe, Johnson, Morgan, Morrill, Nye, Powell, Riddle, Saulsbury, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Sumner, Wade, Wilkinson, Wilson, Wright—24.

Nays—Messrs. Doolittle, Harris, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, McDougall, Nesmith, Pomeroy, Ramsey, Ten Eyck, Trumbull, Van Winkle, Willey—11.

ARMY AND NAVY BILL.

Mr. Sherman made a report, from the Committee of Conference on the Army and Navy Appropriation Bill, which was agreed to.

THE TAX BILL.

The Tax Bill was then taken up.

Mr. Davis, of Kentucky, (Dem.,) moved its indefinite postponement, and on this motion made a lengthy speech, animadverting especially upon the course of the Administration in the conduct of affairs in Kentucky.

RECESS.

The Senate at 4:30 o'clock took a recess to meet again at 7 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate convened at 7 o'clock.

THE TAX BILL.

The consideration of the Tax Bill was resumed.

The motion of Mr. Davis, to indefinitely postpone, was rejected.

The bill was then read at length.

Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, (Union,) made a long and interesting speech on the financial policy of the countrp. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, Monday, Feb. 27.

AMENDMENTS TO THE TARIFF.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, Union,) from the Committee of Way and Means, reported a bill amendatory of the act imposing duties on imports, approved June, 1864. He said it was not now proposed to go into a general revision of the tariff, but to postpone the main subject till the next session. But having imposed higher duties on domestic liquors, and raised the duty on petroleum and cotton, all the committee now proposed to do was to change the mode of estimating the value, and to increase some of the rates.

The bill was read. It proposes, among other things, that from and after the passage of this act, in addition to the duties heretofore imposed by law, there shall be paid on brandy, rum, gin, whisky, arrack, liquors and cordials, fifty cents per gallon, of first proof, to be increased in proportion for any greater strength than first proof; on silk, spun or reeled from cocoons, ten per centum ad valorem; and in lieu of the present duties there shall be paid on cotton five cents per pound; on illuminating gas oil, naptha, benzine, refined coal oil, shale, peat, petroleum, or other betuminous substances for illumination, forty cents per gallon; on tobacco stems, fifty cents per pound; on ready-made clothing of silk, or of which silk is a component part and of chief value, sixty per centum; on bar iron for railroads, and fitted to be laid down, 15 cents per 100 lbs. The tonnage duty in the Tariff Act of July 4, 1862, to be increased from 10 to 30 cents. So much of the act of 1856 as prohibits the exportation of guano on islands discovered by Americans is repealed. The act to take effect April 1, 1865. The bill also contains a provision imposing 20 per cent. ad valorem on goods the value of which is based on the square yard.

The bill was made the special order for to-night.

FORTIFICATION BILL.

The Fortification Bill having been returned from the Senate with an amendment reducing the original items one-half, Mr. Townsend, of New-York, (Dem.,) said it seemed rather a careless way of legislation. The House reports a bill appropriating such amounts as in their judgment are necessary, and the Senate reduce the amounts just one-half. Now, it would appear to any person of the most ordinary capacity, that there are some places which are of more importance than others. Take for instance the fortifications of New-York harbor. Large contracts have just been given out, and to curtail the appropriations for that place would be a very serious matter. In the event of a foreign war New-York, from its wealth and importance, would probably be the first point of attack. I would like, therefore, to ask the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means if this matter was carefully considered before asking the concurrence of the House.

Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) replied that the matter was considered very carefully in the committee, and although they were opposed to the reductions, they considered that the sum appropriated would be as much as they could spend during the year. They therefore concluded to recommend that the House concur in the amendment.

On motion, the House accordingly concurred in the Senate's amendment.

LEGISLATIVE APPROPRIATIONS.

The House considered the Senate's amendments to the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Frank, of New-York, (Union,) Chairman of the Library Committee, said the enlargement by Congress of the Library, for which an appropriation of $160,000 was asked, was absolutely necessary, because no more room exists for the addition of books. More than half the present library is unprotected against fire. Fifty thousand out of ninety thousand volumes are in the wooden portion of the library, subject to a repetition of the calamity which destroyed the collection in 1851, and has now nearly destroyed the Smithsonian Institution. The great danger to these national treasures are familiar to all, and once lost, the books cannot be fully replaced. The donation to the library from foreign Governments and those of the several States are too valuable to be neglected, and this great national library, which has been built up at so much expenditure of care and money, should not be suffered to remain unprotected.

The amendment was concurred in, together with others.

The House added an amendment, requiring the proceedings of Congress to be published the next day in the Congressional Globe—speeches not actually delivered to be postponed until there is room for them.

The next amendment of the Senate was the addition of the Deficiency Appropriation Bill, the passage of which has been long delayed, owing to the disagreement by the Senate to the appropriation of $38,000 for extra compensation to the clerks and other employes of the House. The Committee of Ways and Means recommended a non-concurrence in the amendment.

Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, (Union) hoped the House would concur in the amendment of the Senate, and thus end the controversy, the amendment being the Deficiency Bill as it had passed this House, but without the item of extra compensation to clerks and employes.

Mr. Stevens said the House had refused more than twice to strike out the appropriation, yet the Senate persists. He stated that the fifty-two Senators receive seventeen thousand dollars for stationery, while one hundred and ninety-two members of the House receive only twelve thousand. The Senators distribute ninety-six volumes each of the Congressional Globe, while each member of the House distributes only twenty-four. As to mileage, the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Sherman,) receives $532, while the member of this House, from the same town, receives $440. Each of the Senators from Kansas receives $2,160, while the member here receives but $1,260; and yet the House does not find fault with these domestic institutions of the Senate; but the House does claim to manage their contingent funds in their own way.

Mr. Garfield, of Ohio, (Union,) was unwilling longer to keep up the contest, and referred to the law of 1858 to show that no extra pay shall be allowed unless there is special provision for that purpose. The House, in its generosity last winter, passed a resolution to pay such extra compensation directly in face of the law.

Mr. James C. Allen, of Illinois, (Dem.,) was unwilling to yield to the dictation of the Senate, and, therefore, opposed the Senate's amendment.

Mr. Kasson, of Iowa, (Union,) said he was originally opposed to the extra compensation, but thought it was the duty of the House to stand by its provision to insist on paying its clerks the compensation to which they were entitled.

The question was taken on the amendment adding the deficiency bill, minus the extra compensation for the House clerks and employes, and decided in the negative by a vote of 54 yeas against 75 nays.

ENROLLMENT BILL.

The House resumed the consideration of the amendatory enrollment bill, the section pending being that which increases the penalty for desertion by disfranchising deserters who do not return in sixty days.

Mr. Townsend, of New-York, (Dem.,) moved to strike out the section.

Mr. Schenck, of Ohio, (Union,) said this section was copied precisely from the bill which has passed the Senate, and he believed it to be a wholesome provision. He was glad the motion had been made, because it would distinguish those who were friendly to those who had deserted their country and flag, from those who were in favor of punishing desertions from the country and the flag.

Mr. J. C. Allen, of Illinois, (Dem.,) opposed the section, because it was designed to be retroactive; and he entered his protest against the inference drawn by the gentleman from Ohio, who ought not to be flaunting such remarks in the face of gentlemen on the Opposition side of the House. Those who do not support the section should not be arraigned as enemies of the Government. It was unjust.

Mr. Chanler, of New-York, (Dem.,) said there was no necessity for such a stringent measure, and that the bill itself violated the rights of every citizen throughout the country.

Mr. Schenck remarked that he had made no general charge of disloyalty: and, in reply to Mr. Allen, said the bill was not retroactive, and the Committee on Military Affairs had carefully avoided making it so.

Mr. Townsend explained his reasons for moving to strike out the section, saying that innocent persons would be affected. He did not go to the gentleman from Ohio to get his loyalty to the Government, and threw back the infamous insinuation of the gentleman with scorn.

Mr. Townsend was called to order.

Mr. Schenck—Oh, let him go on.

Mr. Townsend concluded his remarks, when Mr. Schenck said if entertaining the sentiments which the gentleman expressed constituted disloyalty, then, in his opinion, the gentleman was disloyal.

Mr. Eldridge, of Wisconsin, (Dem.,) inquired whether that language was in order.

The Speaker replied that the gentlemen could not make the statement as an asseveration.

Mr. Mallory, of Kentucky. (Dem.,)—He can make it in a Pickwickian sense. (Laughter.)

Mr. Schenck—I do not make it in a Pickwickian sense.

The Speaker said if the gentleman so charged against the gentleman from New-York, he was out of order.

Mr. Schenck said he had taken down the gentleman's language. If it did not agree with the reporter's notes, then he was not sustained.

Mr. Kalbfleisch, of New-York, (Dem.,) wished to know whether the gentleman measured his loyalty by that of those on the opposition side of the House.

Mr. Schenck replied he would not say whether he sunk below or rose above such a standard.

At this point Mr. Morrill made a report on the disagreeing amendments to the Navy Appropriation Bill, and it was passed.

The question was taken on Mr. Townsend's motion to strike out the pending section of the Enrollment Bill, and decided in the negative.

Mr. Chanler offered a new section that so much of all acts as authorize the President to raise troops by conscription be and the same are hereby repealed, and supported it by a speech.

The amendment was was rejected—yeas 27, nays 95. Those who voted in the affirmative are Messrs. Ancona, Brooks, Chanler, Clay, Denison, Eden, Edgerton, Eldridge, Harris of Maryland, LeBlond, Long, Mallory, Miller of Pennsylvania, Morrison, Noble, O'Neill of Ohio, Pendleton, Perry, Pruyn, Rogers, Ross, Stiles, Strouse, Townsend, Wadsworth, C. W. White and J. W. White.

The bill having been perfected, Mr. Schenck moved the previous question.

Mr. Mallory moved that the bill be laid on the table, but the question was decided in the negative.

The bill was then read a third time, and passed by a vote of 80 yeas against 39 nays.

The bill is as follows:

Hereafter all persons mustered into the military or naval service, whether as volunteers, substitutes, representatives or otherwise, shall be credited to the State and to the township, precinct or other enrollment sub district where such persons belong by actual residence, if such persons have actual residence within the United States, and where such persons were or shall be enrolled if liable to enrollment; and it is made the duty of the Provost-Marsal General to make such rules and give such instructions to the several Provost-Marshals, boards enrollment and mustering officers as shall be necessary for the faithful enforcement of the provisions of this section to the end, that fair and just credits shall be given to every section of the country provided that no credit shall be given except for such men as have actually been mustered in.

The following amendment was adopted, on motion of Mr. Holman:

That in every case where any regiment, battalion or company has been mustered out of service, by reason of the expiration of the term for which such organization had been accepted, the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to cause immediately to be mustered out all those non-commissioned officers and privates who, during the years 1862 and 1863, were enlisted with the assurance and understanding that they were to serve only for the unexpired term of any such organization, and in case where regiments, battalions and companies have not been mustered out then such non-commissioned officers and privates as are above described, he shall cause to be mustered out, whenever the term of such organization shall expire, provided that before any such enlisted man is mustered out, he shall sign a statement under oath, that he enlisted with the distinct assurance and understanding, that he engaged to serve only for the unexpired term of the organization into which he was mustered, such statement to be verified by the recruiting officer by whom he was enlisted, or by some commissioned officer having actual and personal knowledge of the case.

The third section provides that in computing quotas hereafter, credit shall be given to the several States, districts and sub-districts for all men furnished from them respectively, and not heretofore credited during the present rebellion for any period of service of less than three months, calculating the number of days for which such service was furnished, and reducing the same to years; provided that such credits shall not be applied to the call for additional troops made by the President on the 21st day of December, 1864.

Sec. 4. No person of foreign birth who has resided in the United States for three years preceeding his arrival at the age of 21 years, shall be exempt from enrollment and draft on account of being an alien.

The remaining sections provide that the mustering in of a substitute shall be conclusive in favor of the principal, and exempt him from military service for the term for which he was drafted. Assistant-Provost-Marshal-Generals are to be appointed by the President and chargeable with the duties intermediate between the Provost-Marshal-General and the District Provost-Marshal. Any person who has been or may be drafted for one year, but who has furnished an acceptable substitute for three years, shall be exempt for this period of time. It shall not be lawful for any person to engage in the business of procuring recruits or substitutes for money or profit without having first obtained from the Secretary of War authority in writing. The party is to file proof of his loyalty and good character, and give bond to the amount of $50,000 that he will faithfully observe and obey the laws and regulations in force governing the obtaining of recruits or substitutes. Any recruiting agent who causes to be enlisted any insane person, or convict, or person under indictment for felony, is to be punished by fine and imprisonment; and any officer knowingly mustering any deserter, or insane person, or persons in a condition of intoxication, or any minor, without the consent of his parents or guardians, shall, on conviction, be dishonorably dismissed the service. Principals who put in insufficient substitutes are to be notified of the fact, in order that their places may be properly supplied; provided that notice be given to such principals within thirty days. In addition to the other lawful penalties of the crime of desertion from military or naval service, all persons who have deserted, who shall not return or report themselves to a Provost-Marshal within sixty days, shall be deemed and taken to have voluntarily relinquished and forfeited their rights of citizenship and their right to become citizens; and all persons who shall hereafter desert on being duly enrolled, or shall depart from the jurisdiction and go beyond the limits of the United States with intent to avoid any draft duly ordered, shall be liable to the penalties of this section, and the President is authorized to issue his proclamation that he will pardon those who return and serve out their original term. This act is to take effect from and after its passage; and nothing therein is to depart from, or interfere with, or postpone the pending draft, or the quotas assigned therefor. The bill repeals the 3d section of the enrollment law, which authorizes Governors of States to send recruiting agents into the rebel States.

At 6 o'clock the House took a recess until 7:30 this evening.

THE BANK OF COMMERCE FORGERIES.

Trial of Michael O'Brien—The Jury Unable to Agree.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hoffman.

Michael O'Brien, jointly indicted with Walter G. Pattison and Ira Garadier, for a forgery on the Mechanics' Bank of this city, was brought up for trial yesterday morning.

Pattison pleaded guilty to another indictment last week. Garadier was convicted and sentenced about two months ago, and O'Brien is now the only one of the Bank of Commerce forgers left. In opening the case for the people, Mr. Hall detailed the circumstances of forgery of the name of Richard D. Lathrop, to the check for $25,000 on the Mechanics' Bank, upon which the conspirators obtained $25,000 in seven-thirty notes from the Bank of Commerce, and which are already familiar to the public.

Richard D. Lathrop, being sworn, testified that his signature and indorsement to the check was a forgery; that he kept no account in the Mechanics' Bank, and knew of no other person of that name.

Samuel Moore testified that he was confidential clerk to the Cashier of the Bank of Commerce; that he received a note written on paper headed Lathrop, Ludington & Company, signed H. D. Weed, and inquiring the price for $25,000 in seven-thirties; it was handed by the boy McLaughlin; the next day the same boy brought the check signed by Mr. Lathrop, and also an order for the amount of the check in seven-thirty bonds; the bonds were delivered to the boy, and he went away with them.

These witnesses were not cross-examined, as the defence admitted the forgeries and the fraudulent procurement of the bonds.

Henry F. Vail, sworn, testified that he was absent when the check was brought there; his impression was that the check was brought there between 12 and 1 o'clock.

James McLaughlin sworn, testified that he was 17 years old, and resided with his mother; in September last he was out of a place; he had formerly been working in a real estate office; I know O'Brien; I first saw him on the 22d of September last, near the corner of Nassau and Beekman streets; the day before I saw O'Brien, Weed (Garadier) gave me a letter to take to the Bank of Commerce; I took the letter, and when I came back Weed told me to return about noon the next day; the next day I came back to the same place but did not see Weed. O'Brien came up to me while I was waiting there and asked me if I was the man that Mr. Weed had employed yesterday; I said I was, and he then gave me a note to take to Lathrop, Luddington & Co.; I took the note over there and then came back to the Park Hotel, in Nassau-street, near Beekman; O'Brien then gave me a note to take to the Bank of Commerce; he also gave me a large pocket-book, and told me that they would give me something which I must put in the pocket-book and bring back to him; I went to the Bank, and when there Mr. Moore gave me a package, which was too large to go in the pocket-book, so I held it in my hand; as I was going back up Nassau, I met O'Brien near John-street; he took the package from me, and told me Weed was waiting for me at the Park Hotel; O'Brien went up John to Broadway, and I went up to meet Weed.

Cross-examined.—When I saw O'Brien and gave him the package it was nearly one o'clock; the first time I saw him it was about twelve o'clock; I made a statement to Officer Young; I told him then that the man to whom I gave the package was a fat man; I told Officer Hays that the man was a stout man; I meant that he was a pretty stout man; I think the man had on a round hat and dark clothes; his hat was a grayish color; I did not notice his clothes particularly.

Re-direct.—These descriptions were given to the officers before the arrest was made; I was asked to describe two persons.

The prosecution here rested, and Ex-Judge Stewart opened the case for the defence.

John L. Young, sworn for the defence.—I am Sergeant of the Detective Police; I examined this lad, McLaughlin; I took down his description of O'Brien correctly, and that statement is in my hand-writing.

Cross-examined—This statement was taken down about ten days after the forgery; he gave a description of the man to whom he gave the package; he said he was stout and would be called a fat man.

Gilbert Hays, sworn for the defence—Testified that he was a Special Detective for the Associated Banks of this city; I took down a statement of the boy, McLaughlin; he said that the man to whom he gave the package was a stout man with a Derby hat; this statement was made two days after the forgery.

AN ALIBI.

Michael Hays sworn for the defence—I am a cigar maker; I sold him 500 cigars on the 22d of September last at his house at High Bridge; when I first went to his house he was engaged, and I did not see him; about 1:30 or 1:45 I saw him; he was tending bar when I did see him in his own house at High Bridge; O'Brien took a receipt from me for the cigars. [Receipt shown witness.] This is the receipt I gave him.

Cross-examined—I do not know anything about the necessity of putting a stamp on a receipt; I was born in Liverpool, and came to this country about three years ago; I have seen stamps on receipts in the old country; I was a cigar maker in Liverpool; I worked there eight years; making cigars is my trade; I have made no return to the United States Assessor of the cigars that I make; I know that I ought to; this receipt was written at my house in Carlton-avenue, Brooklyn, on the 22d of September last; the receipt was written before I went up to High Bridge; it was first written in a book of mine, a blank book for which I have no particular use; I carried the segars up to High Bridge myself; I live about two miles from the ferry, in Brooklyn; I work for Mr. Cameron; the man that wrote this receipt was named Jones, and worked there also; on the morning of the 22d I left home between 11 and 12 o'clock, crossed the Fulton Ferry, and took the Harlem boat at Peck-slip; the boat stopped several times going up the East River, and at Harlem I took another boat to the Bridge; he was not in his house when I got there, but after I had taken a little walk I came back and found O'Brien tending bar; I gave him the segars, got my money and this receipt.

W. S. Williard, sworn for defence, testified that he kept an oyster saloon on Broadway, and was in the habit of visiting O'Bien's house, at High Bridge, several times a day; I saw the last witness there some day of September last; I saw O'Brien there behind his own bar that day; he was in his shirt-sleeves; it was on Thursday, 22d of September, 1864.

Cross-examined—I fix the day by reason of having sent a young man up to O'Brien's to work; he returned the next day and I employed him myself; the entry on my help-book of the employment of this man was the 23d of September; it was the day before that I was at O'Brien's.

Edward L. Johnson, sworn for the prosecution—I am employed in the New-York Hospital, and keep in a book the record of the weather; on the 22d of September last, the entry is, "in the morning overcast, light rain before night."

This closed the testimony on both sides, and the case was summed up by Ex-Recorder Smith for the prisoner, and A. Oakey Hall for the people.

The case was given to the jury, who retired, but after an absence of several hours, came into court at a few minutes before 7 P. M., saying that they could not agree upon a verdict. The court thereupon discharged them from further consideration of the case.

THE CELEBRATION OF OUR VICTORIES.

A Grand Display Anticipated—The Military, Firemen, Civic Societies, Trade Organizations, Masons, Officers of the Navy-yard and Judges to take part in it.

The Committee of Arrangements of the National Celebration of Union Victories, William P. Blodgett, Esq., Chairman, were in session the entire day yesterday at the Astor House, attending to the preliminaries for the great celebration on Saturday next. The committee is composed of the following citizens: Wm. P. Blodgett, Chairman; Thos. C. Acton, Elliott C. Cowdin, M. Cooper, Josiah Hadden, Hon. Chas. C. Cornell, Supervisor Wm. M. Tweed, and Hon. Douglass Taylor.

The different trades will be represented by emblems of their industry. Many attractive and novel features will be presented in the procession, among which will be a complete model of the original Monitor which fought the Merrimac, and a representation of Fort Sumter as it now appears after four years' battering from Union guns, with the old flag again floating over it.

The chimes of Trinity will peal out patriotic peans at sunrise, noon and sunset.

A full battery of cannon captured from the rebels, will form one of the features of the procession, and will be manned by veterans, who will fire salutes at various points.

The meeting for speaking will be held at Union-square from 4 to 6 P. M.

Among those invited to participate in the celebration are: Gov. Fenton, Lieut.-Gov. Alvord, Speaker Haskins, members of the Legislature, Major-Gen. Sanford, Mayor Gunther, and members of the City Government, all editors of the newspaper press, Major-Gen. Wilcox, Brig.-Gen. Hinks, Col. Fowler, Admiral Paulding and officers of the Navy-yard, the Judges of the various courts in this city, and all officers of the army and navy in this city.

Merchants, bankers, factories, workshops, ship-yards, and all places where large numbers of our people may be employed, will undoubtedly respond to the request of the Committee, and close their places of business before 3 o'clock on Saturday, to enable their employes to join in the procession.

All public institutions, private buildings, and ships in port, are requested to display their flags from sunrise to sunset.

It is understood that the Mayor has declined to participate in the proposed celebration, and that he intimated to the Committee that his position in regard to such celebrations had been assumed and set forth in his veto message of October last, when he refused to sanction certain resolutions of the Common Council for a general illumination and rejoicing over the fall of Atlanta, and that his views on the subject remained unchanged.

In the Board of Councilmen, at their meeting yesterday, a resolution was offered, in effect declining to take any part in the rejoicings. The resolution was referred to the Committee on National Affairs.

Board of Councilmen.

THE BOARD DECLINE TO COÖPERATE WITH THE CITIZENS' COMMITTEE IN CELEBRATING OUR RECENT VICTORIES.

This board met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. James Hayes in the chair.

A communication was received from Moses Taylor, Esq., Chairman of the committee of citizens appointed to make arrangements for celebrating our recent victories, inviting the board to join in the celebration.

In connection therewith, Councilman Robinson offered the following resolution:

Whereas, It has been proposed to celebrate the occupation of the cities of Charleston, Wilmington and Columbia, and to commemorate on the 4th of March, Saturday of the present week, and the recent victories achieved by the Federal forces under Gens. Sherman, Terry and others, and of the naval forces under Commodore Porter; and,

Whereas, The near approach of the date selected will prevent a becoming celebration; and,

Whereas, We feel a great pride in the principles of our Government, as defined in the official writings of the "Father of Democracy," whose natal day should be revered and commemorated by every lover of free institutions; therefore be it

Resolved, That a joint committee be appointed with power to make arrangements for celebrating the 13th of April, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the immortal Declaration of Independence, and in the expression of the hopes we entertain that, guided by a wise Providence, our nation's unity may be restored and our national glory perpetuated in the successful adherence to the great principles of which he was justly termed the father.

Resolved, That for the purpose of carrying the foregoing resolution into effect, the sum of ——— dollars be and the same is hereby appropriated to defray the expenses of such celebration.

Both papers were then referred to the Committee on National Affairs.

After disposing of a number of unimportant documents, the Board adjourned till Monday, at 2 P. M.

The Charity Ball Last Night.

The Academy of Music never looked gayer, and a more brilliant assemblage never gathered within its walls than on last evening, at the Charity Ball, given for the benefit of the Nursery and Child's Hospital. The flooring was extended over the orchestra seats, which, with the stage, gave ample space for dancing. In the rear of the stage was an Italian colonnade, in front of which were two terraces—the upper one surmounted by gas lights, held by groups of children. In front were vases of green vines and gold fish, while in the centre was a posture of natural flowers. Over the stage was the word "Charity" formed by gas jets, in large letters, which was very beautiful. Around the boxes were festoons, vases of flowers. Brady also adorned the house with many of his beautiful photographs, among which was a group of the lady managers of Sanitary Fair, many of whom are also managers of the Nursery and Child's Hospital. The guests began to assemble at an early hour, in full dress, and until 10:30 o'clock the line of coaches filled Fourteenth-street to Fourth-avenue. At that time the scene was most brilliant, the many gas-lights, rich decorations, and costly and magnificent toilettes of the ladies presenting a beautiful spectacle. The worth, the intelligence and the beauty of the great metropolis were all well represented. The arrangements were excellent, carefully avoiding all confusion. The following were the executive committee: George Griswold Gray, Arthur Leary, Henry Clews, John Pyne, Daniel Kingsland, Peter Marie, Wm. P. Salboys, and James F. Ruggles.

The object of the institution, for the benefit of which the ball of last evening was held, is worthy of the liberal support it received. It has been in existence ten or twelve years, and was organized for the support of the children of poor women who have to go out to work, and also for the support of crippled children. During the past two or three years it has become involved in debt, and the managers resolved to appeal to the public for aid through a "Charity Ball," and most nobly did the public respond to that appeal. Over four thousand tickets were sold, and it is estimated that that number of persons were present. A sufficient fund will be realized, not only to pay the outstanding debts of the institution, but also to support it for the succeeding six months.

The music was furnished by Helmsmuller and Grafulla, and of course was excellent.

New-York Opthalmic School and Hospital.

The thirteenth annual commencement of the New-York Opthalmic School and Hospital was held, last evening, at the chapel of the New-York University, in the presence of a large and appreciative audience. President Solomon Jenner presided, and introduced Rev. Dr. Ferris, who opened the proceedings with prayer. After which the President remarked that since the last meeting, a year ago, he was happy to say that the institution, under the fostering care of the State, city and kind friends, has greatly increased its influence and usefulness. It was only necessary to present a worthy object to the people of New-York, and they would come forward and liberally subscribe their funds.

Professor J. M. Carnochan then addressed the graduating class. He said that the pleasing task had been allotted to him to present them with their diplomas. It was gratifying to him to say that they had earned the great distinction which they were about to receive. Too much praise could not be accorded to the graduates for the attention and labor they had bestowed upon opthalmic surgery during the studies of their medical education. The course they had pursued showed their good judgment, for those most antagonistic to specialties had been convinced of their error in respect to the opthalmic course.

At the conclusion of Prof. Carnochan's remarks, the following gentlemen were presented with diplomas:

Norman A. Smith, Samuel S. Porter, Henry C. Birchards, John Eisner, John Parberry, John Craig, W. G. Brownson, L. L. Tozier, L. V. Parker, B. F. Miesse, John F. Ely.

After a few well-timed remarks to the graduates by James T. Brady, Esq., the meeting adjourned.

FROM KEY WEST.

Wreck of the United States Transport Empire City—Passengers and Crew Saved—The Boat Aground but May be Got off.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Key West, Fla., Saturday, Feb. 18, 1865.

The Empire City, United States transport steamer, left her wharf at Key West on Feb. 10, freighted with ordnance and Quartermaster's stores, and carrying about 275 passengers—soldiers and refugees—and seven officers bound to New-Orleans. She had fine weather and a good voyage until the 16th at 9 o'clock P. M., when she ran aground about 12 miles south of Carysfoot Light, on the Florida Reef. She ran out an anchor, and tried to get off, without avail. She commenced to heave over her lading about midnight, and by 2 P. M. on the 17th had succeeded in throwing overboard all her heavy lading without relieving her in the least. We had up signals during the day and saw but two sail both bound northward, and far to the east. At 10 o'clock on the 17th we saw a steamer bound southward, which, observing our signals, reached us about 2 P. M., proving to be the United States gunboat Albatross, Capt. Du Bois commanding. The Albatross stood by within half a mile and took on board all the passengers and landed them at Key West at 10 o'clock A. M. on the 18th, where she received orders from the Admiral to proceed with them to New-Orleans.

Five tugboats have been sent to the assistance of the vessel, and it is thought that she may yet be saved should the weather continue favorable.

The troops on board were commanded by Capt. Robinson, Sixteenth Connecticut Volunteers. Capt. Ames, of the Seventh United States Infantry, and E. McClintock, Assistant Surgeon, United States Volunteers, a survivor of the Thames and North America, who thinks it rather hard to be again a

JONAH.

Cost of Revenue Collection.

U. S. Internal Revenue,
Eighth District, State of New York,
New-York, Feb. 26, 1865.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Sir: I have been referred to a statement in the World, founded on another in the Philadelphia Press, that the cost of collecting the United States Internal Revenue is over seven per cent., and that certain Philadelphians are ready to "contract" to do it for two per cent., and thus save the Government the inordinate compensation now squandered upon "collections," &c.

If the Press or the World will induce the Government to make a contract for collecting this revenue, I, for one, will gladly surrender all compensation now received, and make the collections in this district, including all expenses of deputies, clerks, rent, stationery, advertising, &c., for one-half of one per cent.

This one-fourth of the expense proposed by the Philadelphia grumbler, and one-fourteenth of what he says it now costs.

As a mercantile operation, can it be expected that collections should be made of, say 10,000 to 15,000 accounts, under bonds justified for $200,000, and to keep all the records, and pay all expenses, at a less rate than one-half of one per cent?

Yet very few "collectors," I imagine, will be reluctant to surrender all their present compensation and accept this instead.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Respectfully yours, G. W. PUTNAM.

The Association for the Relief of Respectable Aged Indigent Females.—This association makes an appeal for aid. It has recently celebrated its fifty-first anniversary. During the past half century it has received within its doors many aged women, some of whom had once been in affluent circumstances. It has clothed, sheltered and fed them while living, and when dead has given them decent Christian burial. This work it is still doing. The asylum is always full, there being now ninety-three pensioners beneath its roof. Vacancies made by death are at once filled from the list of candidates for admission. There are also one hundred out-door pensioners ministered to abroad. All contributions will be thankfully received.

Mortality of the City.—The deaths in this city during the past week numbered 554—133 men, 137 women, 159 boys and 125 girls—an increase of 57 upon the mortality of the previous week, and a decrease of 4 as compared with the corresponding week of the past year. Of the deceased, 262 were children under 5 years of age. The mortality by the principal diseases was as follows: Consumption, 99; marasmus, 28; infantile convulsions, 30; diphtheria, 14; scarlet fever, 16; typhus fever, 15; inflammation of the lungs, 50; small-pox, 30. The deaths from small-pox during the previous week were 35.

Correction.—The paragraph, published yesterday, stating that Hose Company No. 21, had been disbanded by the Fire Commissioners was incorrect—it should have been Hose Company No. 26. The disorganization and demoralization of the company was the cause of the disbandment.

The Progress of Recruiting.—The Volunteer Committee received 160 recruits yesterday, a larger number than on any previous day since the commencement of the year. The men are of a better class than have presented themselves lately.

Enlistment Frauds—The Habeas Corpus to Col. Baker.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Barnard.

The People ex. rel. Abraham Lyon vs. Col. Baker.—This case, which was reported in the Times on Monday, came up yesterday morning before Judge Barnard, at Chambers. Col. Baker, to whom the writ was directed, appeared in court at the appointed hour, accompanied by his counsel, Hon. L. S. Chittenden. Mr. Lyon, the alleged delinquent bounty broker, and whose name appears as relator in the petition upon which the writ was granted, did not appear. Col. Baker, by his counsel, made return to the writ, that he (Baker) had been, by the War Department at Washington, sent to this city, with special instructions to investigate the fraudulent operations of a class of persons, commonly known as bounty brokers; that Abraham Lyon was charged with forgery and fraud in the enlistment of recruits, several complaints having been made against him by persons who testified that they had been swindled by means of the false representations made by him (Lyon) and his agents; that he, (Col. Baker) by special instructions from the President of the United States, had arrested Lyon, who was now, according to the best of his information and belief, in the custody of one Woods, the keeper of the Old Capitol Prison in the City of Washington, D. C., and hence that he was beyond the control of the respondent, Col. Baker. The return concluded by protesting against the action which the Supreme Court had taken in regard to the prisoner. At this stage of the proceedings Judge Barnard said that the return to the writ was sufficient, unless the matter set forth therein was denied.

Mr. Dittenhofer, who appeared as counsel for the relator, hereupon made an application for an attachment against Col. Baker, for neglect in not producing the prisoner as he was required to do by the writ. He contended, that the order of the President, suspending the writ of habeas corpus, did not apply to cases of this nature. While he justified the Government in taking the most rigid measures for the purpose of ferreting out fraud, and punishing severely the men who had been guilty of swindling poor men out of their bounty, he still thought that this was a case in which an innocent man would suffer if Col. Baker were allowed to shield himself by such a return. Counsel further said they desired to traverse the return.

The motion for an attachment against Col. Baker was peremptorily denied. For the purpose of giving the counsel of Lyon an opportunity to traverse the return, Judge Barnard postponed the case until this morning.

Another Government Prisoner Applies for Relief.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Barnard.

Mr. Superintendent Kennedy, of the Police, was yesterday summoned to court, in consequence of a writ of habeas corpus having been served on him, whereby he was required to produce the body of Isaac Jaques Woods. The writ was issued by Judge McCunn and made returnable before Judge Barnard. Mr. Kennedy made a return to the effect that Mr. Woods, the relator, was held by him by order of Gen. Dix, and that Woods was arrested for having stolen a large quantity of Government property. After some discussion by counsel, the case was dismissed.

Lord Byron
ON
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.
(By Spiritual Telegraph.)

The spiritualistic poems by departed bards that have heretofore been published in the Herald of Progress and other papers of that class, have not been much to the purpose; but the following effusion, purporting to be from the disembodied author of "Don Juan," is at once practical, pointed and poetic:

Man wants a Tonic—no uncommon want—
  And every year and month brings forth a new one,
Which, after cramming the gazettes with cant,
  The age discovers to be not the true one.
Of such as these let their concoctors vaunt,
  I'll sing the Bitters that have credit due won—
The world's great tonic, which no skill can better—
  I mean the matchless Bitters of Hostetter.

Doctors were living long before old Galen,
  And since, exceeding learned, grave and sage;
But the stomachics they were bound to fail in;
  Success came not until this later age.
Now is the era sick folks are made hale in,
  And dread dyspepsia driven from the stage.
Agues, remittents, headaches—real head-splitters—
  Vanish like smoke before Hostetter's Bitters.

In Pittsburgh are they made—a pleasant city,
  Famous for furnaces and coal bituminous,
Which, though by day they may not be deemed pretty
  Make it by night particularly luminous.
But finer still the Bitters, made in pity
  For the complaints that else would be consuming us.
I don't mean us, but those who, not being sprites,
  Bitters require to put their frames to rights.

Herbs, barks and roots compose the rare infusion;
  No mineral poison mars their juices pure,
And rye's mild essence holds them in solution.
  The taste is pleasant, the effect is sure.
Ne'er have the Bitters yet proved a delusion;
  Try them in time, and health and strength secure.
The Dragon-slayer figures on the label,
  And they, like him, to save the weak are able.

The property of this company has been selected by practical judges of oil interests, and includes territory which is considered the very best in the whole oil region, embracing selections on Cherry Run, Pit-hole and Oil Creeks, and Allegnany River.

The producing interests are now yielding over one hundred and eighty barrels per day, principally from new wells, and this alone is sufficient to pay two per cent. per month on the entire capital, and with the developments to be made with the unusually large working capital, promises increased dividends at an early day.

PROPERTY IN VENANGO COUNTY, PA.,

Consisting of two hundred and thirty-eight acres of the best oil territory lying on Pithole Creek, Cherry Run, Maguire Run and Dun Run, near tide-out, in fee simple, and interests in the "Lady Washington," "Amazon," and "Colby" wells, and in a number of wells being put down.

Wells will be immediately sunk on the property held in fee simple by this company, and with the large working capital of $75,000 great results are anticipated.

The developed interests, as will be seen above in the "Lady Washington," the "Amazon" and the "Colby" wells, are already sufficient to enable the company to pay monthly dividends.

The company has been formed not as a matter of speculation, but to develop a property which, it is believed will prove to be of great value. The reputation of the gentlemen composing the Board of Trustees is a sufficient guarrantee that this object will be rapidly and faithfully carried out, and thus the stock will prove a most desirable and profitable investment.

LANDS OWNED IN FEE—AN EXTRAORDINARY ADVANTAGE.

The Second National Petroleum Company differs from most organizations of a similar character in one important respect—IT OWNS NEARLY ALL ITS LANDS IN FEE. It is thus enabled to execute leases—for which numerous applications have already been made—for the right of sinking wells on the usual terms of one-half the oil, at no expense to the company. Some of the largest incomes on Oil Creek and Cherry Run are those accruing to the proprietors of lands from this decription of leases. The company will also sink wells on select portions of its properties, and will, of course, in those cases, enjoy all the benefits resulting therefrom.

A PERFECT SECURITY FOR INVESTMENT.

So rapid and steady is the increase in the value of Cherry Run, Pit Hole Creek and Hickory Creek properties, that they will soon be worth, without a doubt, even double the amount of capital stock.

It will thus be seen that every stockholder, being an owner in fee, HAS A PERFECT SECURITY FOR HIS INVESTMENT.

EXTENT AND CHARACTER OF THE COMPANY'S PROPERTIES.

The quantity of rich oil lands, owned in fee by the Second National Petroleum Company, carefully selected from the most celebrated districts of the Pennsylvania oil region, is believed to be the largest ever put into a single corporation.

It amounts to no less than FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY-TWO ACRES ON OIL CREEK, CHERRY RUN, PITHOLE CREEK AND HICKORY CREEK.

On some of the lands oil is now produced; on others wells are rapidly going down; and all are known to abound in the oleaginous treasure.

There is sufficient land in the following catalogue to stock a number of powerful dividend-paying companies. It was thought, however, to be more desirable to concentrate all the property in one concern of a moderate capital, than to spread it over a dozen or more companies in the usual way.

FARM NO. 1, ON CHERRY RUN.

The Duncan and Prather or McCalmert farm, of one hundred and fifty-seven acres, on Cherry Run, adjoining Plumer, owned in fee. No better site for oil operations on Cherry Run. Room for 500 wells.

FARM NO. 2, ON CHERRY RUN.

The Turner Farm, of one hundred acres in fee, has all the advantage of position belonging to Farm No. 1. It is on Cherry Run, contiguous to Plumer, and surrounded by wells either now yielding or being bored.

FARM NO. 3, ON PITHOLE CREEK.

The Second National Petroleum Company, desiring to include all the best known localities in its sphere of operations, has purchased a farm of sixty acres on Pithole Creek, adjoining the new Holmdem Well of 3 barrels. No doubt is entertained, judging from the location and surroundings, that the newly developed oil deposits extend beneath this property. Room for 250 wells.

FARM NO. 4, ON PITHOLE CREEK.

The Minor Tyrrell Farm, of 60 acres in fee, on the west branch of Pithole Creek, within about 80 rods of Howarth's Fork,

FARM NO. 5, ON HICKORY CREEK.

About seventy-five acres in fee, on an affluent of the Alleghany River, which is fast acquiring a reputation second only to Cherry Run. Oil will undoubtedly be found on this farm in largely paying quantities. Room for 300 wells.

FARM NO. 6, OIL CREEK, OPPOSITE THE NOBLE WELL.

A landed interest in twenty acres of the best part of the Foster Farm on Oil Creek, the site of the great Sherman well, which flowed 1,000 barrels a day, and directly opposite and near to the greater Noble well of 1,800 barrels.

FARM NO. 7—CHERRY RUN.

A very valuable part of the company's possessions is a landed or free interest in a portion of the celebrated McFate Farm on Cherry Run. It is within a few rods of the Prince Auburn and Reed Wells; and on the land adjacent is a 200 barrel well, lately struck. One well is now going down on this property, and there is every promise of an ample yield of oil.

FARM No. 9—DUNKARD CREEK.

The company has leased about eight hundred acres on the famous Dunkard Creek, near the boundary line between Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and exactly in the track of the great oil deposit of the continent. The company is entitled to seven-eighths of the product. The best indications of oil have been found upon the tract. In its vicinity are several wells yielding liberally. Room for 1,000 wells.

Work will be commenced upon this property, as upon all the others of the company, promptly.

STOCK RESERVED FOR WORKING CAPITAL. POSITIVELY NO LIABILITIES.

A limited amount of stock has been reserved for working capital at the subscription price of $7 50 a share—par value $15—the same being fully paid up stock, free from all future assessments.

☞ BY THE LAWS OF PENNSYLVANIA, THE LANDS CONSTITUTE THE STOCK; AND NO QUESTION OF INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY ON ACCOUNT OF STOCK CAN ARISE. ☜

Besides a large amount of valuable timber growing [illegible] the said farm, there is a fine bank of coal upon it, which promises an abundant yield.

The company have commenced operations upon both tracts, and intend prosecuting the same with all the vigor and energy possible, having a splendid engine and a full set of drilling tools on the place, and two more first-class 15-horse power engines nearly finished.

Their superintendent has been three months on the ground, preparing the lands for drilling.

There is plenty of room on the Graham Farm for 200 wells, and the managers intend sparing no pains or expense in making the enterprise profitable to stock owners.

The capital stock is very small for the amount and value of the boring land upon which it is based, and the managers invite the most rigid scrutiny into the company's operations—the value, location and quantity of their lands.

The managers could have bought with the money paid for this farm a dozen or more of such small interests as are usually put in oil companies; but being determined to make their money upon the oil rather than from sale of stock, they determined to purchase this farm in preference to a score of small interests.

They have only 10,000 shares of stock to sell, which will be offered at the subscription price of $3.

The Office of the Company in New-York is with Messrs. MACKENZIE & MITCHELL, No. 34 Pine-st., who are our agents for selling, delivering and transferring stock.

The property of this company consists of THREE THOUSAND ACRES of land in fee simple in Wirt and Ritchie Counties, West Virginia, on Dutchman Run and Hugh's River. This land is all paid for, and it is proposed to sell but 5,000 shares of the working capital, which is considered ample until a portion of the land is sold, for which there are many offers at a large advance upon cost.

There are a number of oil springs on the property, also coal and timber. There is but little doubt that productive wells can be had at from one hundred and fifty to two hundred feet, and will be at once commenced; and by the 1st of May large dividends will doubtless be realized.

Professor Richardson, who has examined the property, says: "The Dutchman Run property lies between the crystalized lode of Petroleum and the Burning Spring Oil region; that the crystalized Petroleum lode in itself is the most positive evidence that this vicinity is a superb oil-bearing region."

Reports and Prospectus can be had at our office, where the books are now open for subscription.

The property of the company consists of three hundred acres, in fee, on Oil Creek, and was selected with great care by experienced oil men, and adjoins the land now owned by the Long Island Petroleum Company, of Brooklyn, the Everett Petroleum Company, of Boston, and the Noble Farm Petroleum Company, of New-York.

Such is the confidence of those already interested in the property, that they have sent forward engines and made arrangements for the erection of machinery, tanks, &c., for the immediate development of the property. Lease for fourteen years.

4. A lease of the entire working interest of one-half the oil in lot No. 25 of the same farm, with a well going down, and to be delivered, complete, with a new engine, without expense to this company.

6. One-eighth working interest in the Hicks Well, Smith Farm, Cherry Run, now 590 FEET BELOW THE SURFACE, and going down night and day. This will be finished without expense to this company. From the show of oil in boring, and its proximity to the great Granger and Auborn wells, this will promise to be one of the best in the vicinity.

7. A lease of the entire working interest of one-half the oil in Nos. 12 and 16 of the Keyster Farm, Cherry Run, just above Humboldt Refinery. No better location than this can be found in the whole oil region. All the adjoining leases are being bored by various companies, with every indication of success. Lease for twenty years.

8. One-sixteenth working interest in lease No. 19, Smith Farm, including the new Balliett Well, now pumping 40 BARRELS DAILY, and expected soon to flow. New wells will soon be put down on both the above leases.

9. A lease of one acre of the Haworth Farm, directly on Pithole Creek. A finer location is not possible. A well is now being sunk, which will be DELIVERED TO THIS COMPANY, WITH A NEW ENGINE, FREE OF EXPENSE. Lease 25 years.

10. One-eighth working interest in the famous Auborn Well on Cherry Run, FLOWING 70 BBLS. PER DAY, and the same interest in a new well now being sunk upon these premises.

11. One-eighth working interest in the new Faunce Well on Smith Farm, Cherry Run, adjoining the Auborn Well lease, and now pumping 40 BBLS. PER DAY, with evidences of an early flow.

12. A lease of the entire working interest in lot No 7 on Heydrick Farm, Pithole Run, within a short distance of the great Heydrick Well, and only a quarter of a mile from where the run empties into the Alleghany River. Lease 14 years.

13. A lease on lot No. 19 of the same farm, with a well now going down, and to be DELIVERED TO THIS COMPANY, WITH A NEW ENGINE, FREE OF EXPENSE.

Every acre of the company's property is bottom and the best of boring land, much of it on Oil Creek, Cherry Run, Cherry Tree Run, Alleghany River, opposite Horse Creek, Sugar Creek, Elk Creek, and other streams where the lands are being rapidly developed with the most encouraging prospects.

THE HOTEL-BURNING PLOT.

Trial of the Prisoner Kennedy by Court-Martial.

Interesting Testimony of the Witnesses.

Address of the Judge Advocate, Major Bolles.

THE CASE FOR THE DEFENCE.

Few incidents connected with, or springing from the action of the insurgent States, has created greater excitement, or caused more immediate fear than the well-remembered attempt to burn this great city on the night of Nov. 25, 1864. The terror of our citizens upon that night and the following morning evinced the vastness of the possible danger from similar causes, and stimulated the action of our authorities, national and local, in the laudable endeavor to detect and bring to justice the perpetrators of so vast an outrage. The theories advanced by certain semi-loyal journals as to the operators and motives of the same found but few adherents. The facts are so patently fiendish, the attempts so nearly successful, that the community scouted as one man, the idea that any resident of the metropolis was guilty of the offence. The keen eyed and experienced scouts of Chief YOUNG soon penetrated the mystery, and evidence clear to them as the noon-day sun, proved indisputably that no hand save that of a stranger and an enemy had applied the incendiary's torch to half a score of our hotels filled with women and children, and attempted the fearful destruction of several places of public amusement crowded with life and innocence. A clue singularly obtained was successfully followed, and in process of time the chief culprit was caught, brought to this city and arraigned for trial. A fairer court than that which has tried the pirate BEAL and the incendiary STANTON alias KENNEDY has never convened. Its President, Brig.-Gen. FITZ HENRY WARREN, brings to the discharge of his duties a clear head, a warm heart, a brilliant intellect and an experience varied in culture, as it is rich in honorable preferment, while the other members are recognized officers and gentlemen of mental, moral and professional worth, the Judge-Advocate ranking high among his legal cotemporaries and possessing equally the confidence of the Government and the respect of the men on whose cases he is compelled to pass. Some weeks since the court assembled at the Headquarters of the Department of the East, organized as follows: Brig.-Gen. Fitz Henry Warren, United States Volunteers—President; Brig.-Gen. W. H. Morris, United States Volunteers; Col. M. S. Howe, Third United States Cavalry; Col. H. Day, United States Artillery; Brevet Lieut.-Col. R. F. O'Bierne, Fourteenth United States Infantry; Maj. John A. Bolles, A. D. C. and Judge-Advocate of the Department.

The prisoner,

HOWELL COBB STANTON,

or more properly HOWELL COBB KENNEDY, was brought before them charged with being a spy and an incendiary. Mr. KENNEDY is a man of apparently 30 years of age, with an exceedingly unprepossessing countenance. His head is well shaped, but his brow is lowering, his eyes deep sunken and his look unsteady. Evidently a keen-witted, desperate man, he combines the cunning and the enthusiasm of a fanatic, with the lack of moral principle characteristic of many of the Southern Hotspurs, whose former college experiences, and more recent hotel-burning plots, are somewhat familiar to our readers. KENNEDY is well connected at the South, is a relative, a nephew we believe, of HOWELL COBB, and was educated at the expense of the United States, at West Point, where he remained two years, leaving at that partial period of study in consequence of mental or physical inability. While there he made the acquaintance of Ex-Brig.-Gen. E. W. STOUGHTON, who courteously proffered his services as counsel for his ancient friend in his present needy hour. During KENNEDY's confinement here, while awaiting trial, he made sundry foolish admissions, wrote several letters which have told against him, and in general did, either intentionally or indiscreetly, many things, which seem to have rendered his conviction almost a matter of entire certainty.

Before the above-named court, or more properly speaking, commission, has been in progress, with occasional interruptions, during the past three weeks. The prosecution has urged that KENNEDY alias Stanton was a spy and a guerrillero; that he has repeatedly entered within the lines of the United States Army for the purposes of espial; and that on the night of the 24th of November last he attempted to set fire to the City of New-York, to the manifest detriment of life and property, and against every article or provision of honorable warfare. The confessions of the prisoner at sundry times, and the testimony of his own witnesses, have been most gravely adduced against him. The witnesses examined were Policeman Hays, Superintendent Kennedy, an ex-Confederate Price, Mr. McMasters, editor of the Freeman's Journal, Mrs. Owen, Miss Ellen Cullen, Frank Clarke and Officer Bennett. They were all subjected to the careful examination of Judge-Advocate Maj. BOLLES and Gen. STOUGHTON, counsel for the prisoner, after which Gen. STOUGHTON made an eloquent and impassioned plea in behalf of the defendant, at the conclusion of which the commission adjourned.

THE FINAL SESSION

of the commission was held at the headquarters of the Department of the East yesterday morning, at 11 o'clock. The entire court was present, besides which none save the prisoner, his counsel, the court stenographer, Mr. MUNSON, and one or two others were there. After the reading of the minutes of the last session, the Judge-Advocate proceeded to sum up in behalf of the Government and the accused, as follows:

ADDRESS OF MAJ. BOLLES.

More than three weeks have now elapsed, may it please the court, since the trial began. Every request made, every delay asked for by the accused, has been granted. He has had a full, fair and patient trial on the part of the commissioner, and an able, spirited and eloquent defence, by learned counsel of his own selection. It remains only for the Judge-Advocate, with the impartiality, the calmness and judicial gravity which are incumbent upon him as the representative of law and justice, to present, for your consideration, the evidence adduced and the rules of law that must govern the case; and then to leave in your hands the solemn duty of adjudication, of passing upon the dread question of guilt or innocence, of life or death, involved in this trial. May God guide you to a righteous decision. There are two charges preferred against the accused, viz.: First, acting as a spy; second, violation of the laws of war. I will consider them in their order: First—Acting as a Spy. In drawing the charges I might have treated the acts of the accused, which are set forth in the specifications under this charge, as violations of the laws of war; for, as the authorities declare, and as the accused in his address admits, a spy is a violation of those laws. But I choose to regard the accused as a violator of the acts of Congress, triable and punishable as set forth in section 38, of the Act of March, 3, 1863, which I will now read from the Revised Army Regulations: ¶ 542.—"All persons who, in time of war or of rebellion against the supreme authority of the United States, shall be found lurking or acting as spies, in or about any of the fortifications, posts, quarters, or encampments of the armies of the United States, or elsewhere, shall be triable by a general court-martial or military commission, and shall, upon conviction, suffer death." The words of this section furnish a full and clear answer to the mistaken notion of the accused that he must, in order to be liable as a spy, have visited some post, fort, or military work. The word "elsewhere," as this Court has already decided in the case of BEALL, is coextensive with the whole area of danger in which disguised enemies may seek information to be used for hostile purposes; and covers every city in which insidious and unscrupulous foes may seek the knowledge which shall afterward guide the dagger of the firebrand;—every harbor whose channels may be explored and sounded for the pilotage of rebel ram or privateer—every railroad track on which deadly obstructions may be laid with fatal effect, in points selected by deadly foes in the perfidious disguise of friends; and every steamboat that transports passengers and merchandise upon our lakes, rivers, and sounds, on board of which a lurking enemy may seek the opportunity and the means of seizure, of plunder, of piratical depredation. I might have regarded as parts of one continuing transaction as a spy, all the acts set forth in both of these specifications, beginning in New-York and ending in Detroit. Practically it is of no consequence whether those transactions be regarded as one or two, for if the evidence convict the accused of either, his fate is fixed, and it is immaterial to him what may be decided in regard to the other. I propose to inquire whether the facts admitted by the accused himself, or proved by his own witnesses do, or do not, establish a prima facie case for the prosecution and against the accused. What are those facts? 1. That the accused now is, and ever since August, 1863, has been an officer in the military service of the insurgent States, a Captain in the First Louisiana Infantry. The date of the pay account found stitched into his coat at Detroit is Aug. 31, 1863. 2. That his real name is ROBERT COBB KENNEDY. 3. That in November last he was found in New-York City, under the assumed name of STANTON, and in the disguise of a civilian. 4. That at least one of his errands in New-York was one which he is unwilling to describe or, that he is unwilling to state whether he had any other purpose in visiting New-York than "to have a good time and try to run the blockade." 5. That he left New-York at night and reached Toronto in twenty-four hours. 6. That for some reason he is unwilling to state why he thus left New-York and hurried to Canada. 7. That in December he came from Canada to Detroit, disguised as a civilian, under the false name of Richard Cobb, with a passport falsely describing him as a loyal citizen, residing in "Rock Island, Ill.;" with a loaded revolver concealed on his person, and with Confederate money and paymaster's certificate concealed in the lining of his coat. Not one of these facts is denied; they are all taken from the mouth of the accused and of his witnesses. What says the law to a case like this? I quote the answer from the Judge-Advocate-General, who says on page 127 of the Digest of his decisions and opinions: "That an officer or soldier of the rebel army who comes within our lines disguised in the dress of a citizen is prima facie evidence of his being a spy." So say all the authorities. Upon this state of facts the accused must be deemed to be a spy and convicted accordingly. Such evidence, says the Judge-Advocate-General, (Dig. p. 127) may be rebutted by proof. But, unfortunately for the accused, no rebutting evidence is produced by him. The two papers attached to his address are not evidence, not offered as such, nor admitted as such. They are not proved to be genuine papers. When, or where, or by whom made, or for what purpose, does not appear. If they were made at the time and place of their date, they may have been cunningly intended to disguise the real purpose of the accused. They cannot in any degree modify the legal aspect of this case. Unfortunately for the accused, there is no proof or explanation of his errand, in either New-York or Detroit, to control this stern presumption of the law. No sane man, under like circumstances, would have come to New-York to have a gay time, feeling every hour as he must have felt, the presure of the halter about his neck. No sane man, anxious to run the blockade, or to get safely from Canada to the insurgent States, would have ventured into the enemy's country in disguise, being a rebel officer, to whom detection in such circumstances is death, when a safe, easy, and certain method of effecting that pretended purpose was open to him by way of Halifax or St. Johns. And the court cannot forget that the accused in his written statement (Exhibit No. 1.) virtually admits that he had a guilty purpose, a criminal errand, in coming to New-York, when he declines to state whether he had any other end in view besides pleasure and a voyage from New York to Wilmington. I cannot see, I wish I could see, anything in the testimony of Mrs. OWENS or ELLEN the chambermaid, which bears on this question. I do not doubt their words; but for all that they say, or saw, or knew, the accused was a spy, or, as I shall hereafter argue, an incendiary. There is then, as it verily seems to me, no proof, no fact in evidence, tending to rebut this most terrible and fatal first aspect of the case for the prosecution and against the accused. But he and his counsel argue very earnestly that by force of law the accused, although he may have been acting as a spy in New-York, in November, is discharged from all liability to punishment for that offence, in consequence of his having escaped to Canada, and thus gone beyond the jurisdiction of the United States before he was caught. In support of this argument he cites no authority, but quotes a passage from the February, 1865, number of the United States Service Magazine. I have read that article with much care and no little interest. It is anonymous, and to my request the agent of the magazine courteously declines a disclosure of the author's name. The writer of the article modestly says, on page 159, that, "The opinions of ordinary historians, journalists, annalists, and writers for magazines, are usually of very little value on disputed points on science, ethics, or jurisprudence." I will not apply this proposition to the article, although I should, perhaps, attach more importance to the writer's opinions did he give them the sanction of his name. Upon the point referred to by the accused, this writer on p. 153, after stating that "the criminality of some military offences ceases with the completion of the act, by the return of the perpetrator to the jurisdiction of the opposing belligerent," makes this remark: "We know of no authority for considering this" (acting as a spy) "as a crime at penal law which adheres to the perpetrator after he has escaped within the lines of his own army; that is, beyond the military jurisdiction of the offended belligerent, and beyond his power of punishment." He does not assert that there is no such authority, but simply that he knows of none. I will not discuss the question of his knowledge of authorities. But I do deny, distinctly and emphatically, that the two phrases "escaped within the lines of his own army" and "escaped beyond the military jurisdiction of the offended belligerent" are equivalent terms—meaning one and the same thing. On the contrary, one may be true and the other false. It may be true that if Kennedy had escaped to Richmond he would be no longer liable as a spy; and at the same time it may be, and in law is, untrue that his escape to Canada terminates his criminality, if he be again found acting as a spy in New-York or in Detroit. The Judge-Advocate-General (Digest, p. 127) correctly states the rule by saying that if the spy makes his escape, and be subsequently captured in battle, the crime does not follow him and he cannot be tried for it." The rule of law thus stated is an arbitrary rule, not founded in reason, and at variance with the general principles of the modern law of war, which forbid and punish perfidy and treachery as crimes. In his excellent treatise on International Law, (chapter 26 section 26,) Gen. HALLECK remarks that it is the disguise or false pretence which constitutes the perfidy, and forms the essential element of the crime which, by the laws of war, "is punishable with an ignominious death." To allow the fact of escape in any direction, to purge the guilt of the perfidy, is as wrong and foolish as was that Spartan law of honesty which declared every thief honest who was not found out. A rule thus unreasonable and at variance with the maxims of civilized warfare, is not to be enlarged or extended, and there has never yet been any such enlargement of it as is sought in this case, by the claim of the accused, that his flight to Canada is equivalent to a return to his own army in the field. Nor in any case like this, where the perfidy is repeated or continued, by a return in disguise and under false pretences to the field of his original crime, is the criminal likely to be regarded as cleansed from his criminality. On the contrary, every dictate of good sense and Christian civilization, requires that the spy who thus returns, should be regarded as engaged in one continuous and uninterrupted crime, and as having been arrested in the act which consigns him to ignominy and an ignominious punishment. I come now to consider the second charge, which is, "Violation of the laws of war," in that the accused, in November last, attempted to destroy the City of New-York by fire, and with his own hand, for the purpose of working infinite injury to his enemies, set on fire several of that long catalogue of hotels, theatres and museums, which on the night of Friday, Nov. 25, 1864, were visited by the torch of incendiaries. In reviewing the evidence adduced in support of this charge, I will not recapitulate, but will merely refer to the series of facts which I have already stated as admitted by the accused or by his witnesses. The court will not fail to bear them in mind. In addition to these admitted facts, the prosecution has offered proof of the prisoner's own confession—confessions made to his brother officers in Canada—confessions repeated to one of his door-keepers in New-York—confessions contained in the letters of the accused, and implied in his acts of bribery, and in his procurement, and concealment, and threats of using, or attempting to use, deadly weapons, the knife in New-York, the pistol in Detroit, to effect his escape. I ask the court to consider the two letters of Jan. 11, one to Mr. CRANSTON and the other to Mr. WOOD. In the letter to CRANSTON he says: "I have not been informed of the nature of the charges against me." In the letter to WOOD, written the same day, he says: "I am to be tried by court-martial, as I am informed, for attempting to fire this city." This contradiction as to the sources of his knowledge, or opinion, is remarkable. If he had not been told what were the charges against him, must not his opinion have been the deduction of his own mind from his own knowledge of his complicity in the plan of universal incendiarism, which was attempted on that night of horrors, the 25th of November, 1864. What means his offer of $1,500 in gold for his escape? It cannot be reasonably regarded as the measure of his desire to escape from confinement as a mere prisoner of war. Had he so dreaded detention as a prisoner of war, would he have loitered week after week in New-York, in October and November, while the memory of Johnson's Island was fresh in his mind? If that offer of $1,500 means anything, it means as he says in those letters, that his life was in danger. But except as either spy or incendiary, his life was no more in danger than that of Gen. BEALE or of ROGER A. PRYOR. Independent of those letters, but corroborated by them, is the proof of his confession to PRICE and to HAYES. It is for you, gentlemen of the commission, to determine what credit you shall give to either or both of those witnesses. The accused feels profoundly the presence of their testimony; and the amount of his apprehension may be fairly measured by the vigor and violence of his attack upon those concurring witnesses. I shall not imitate his ardor, but, with cool and deliberate composure, endeavor to estimate the value of the evidence furnished by those witnesses. In regard to young Mr. PRICE, I beg leave to remind the court how ingenuous and candid was his appearance, and how destitute of foundation, in fact, are the accusations and imputations heaped upon him, his motives, and his character! How far is he from being a swift witness, or an unfriendly witness, against the accused? His statement was brief, and it was forced from him only by the decision of the court, that he must disclose all that would not criminate himself. It is mere assumption and assertion on the part of the accused, that PRICE was moved by the sense of his own danger, by the hope of saving himself from any peril, or by the expectation of any reward. He swore that KENNEDY, in his presence and in the presence of several others, declared that he set on fire one hotel, and that he fired Barnum's Museum in two several places. Are you to suspect him of art and duplicity in stating that the other persons present at this conversation were rebel officers? It is hardly probable that while the cases of BURLEY, and the St. Albans robbers and murderers were pending on a claim under the extradition treaty, KENNEDY would proclaim his guilty connection with such a crime as the attempt to burn New-York, in presence of Canadian citizens, or of loyal Americans, who might upon a similar claim, be used as witnesses against him. But is that the fault of Mr. PRICE? There is nothing in the case that casts any shadow of doubt upon PRICE's story, or that could warrant me, or you, in disbelieving that narrative. And if you believe PRICE, the conviction of the accused is inevitable. PRICE's statement is substantiated by that of the doorkeeper, HAYES. The accused confesses his guilt to both of these witnesses.—the one, like himself, a rebel soldier in Canada, the other the turnkey in the prison where KENNEDY is confined. These witnesses had never met. They were utter strangers to each other; neither knew that the other had been or was to be a witness in the case, and both concur in the statement that the accused had declared himself to be one of the New-York incendiaries. The statement of HAYES, in every material portion, is substantiated and corroborated by other proof. He says that the accused offered him a bribe of $1,500 in gold to help to escape. The contents of these letters show this to be true. He says that the accused admitted to him that he was engaged in setting "the down-town fires." PRICE, who knew nothing of this conference, says that the accused admitted his agency in firing Barnum's Museum, which is "down town," and a hotel. These are the material facts proved by HAYES, upon whose character and testimony the accused made an attack so violent, so passionate, so abusive. He attempts, by the testimony of one CHARLES SMITH, to impeach the character of HAYES. But CHARLES SMITH is a drunken sailor, of a half-savage St. Helena race, not very likely to form a correct judgment at the best, and, in this case, prejudiced by having had a difficulty with the witness. Against him and his opinion, the accused himself has, on cross-examination, offered the opinion of Mr. Superintendent KENNEDY. "Would you believe him?" asks the accused. The court will remember how emphatically the Superintendent answered, "Most certainly I should." This answer comes, not only from a gentleman of high character and sound judgment, but from one who has long employed and trusted HAYES, and had abundant opportunity of testing and knowing his worth. This court will not, I am confident, be misled by the argument of the accused into the folly of discrediting any police or detective officer, because, in his intercourse with rogues and criminals, he sometimes resorts to artifice and expedient to detect and expose them. They would as soon doubt the general morality of a farmer who sets traps for the vermin which destroy his crops or his poultry, or the military leader, who, by a skillful feint, diverts his enemy's attention from the real point of attack. Would you doubt the veracity of Admiral PORTER or of Lieut. CUSHING, because they frightened the garrison from Fort Anderson by the flank movement of a sham monitor? Would you discredit Superintendent KENNEDY because he sent word to the accused that the letter to CRANSTON had been delivered? If the Superintendent believed HAYES when HAYES told him of the confession of the accused, why should you disbelieve him when he tells you of the confession? Mr. McMASTER is called to contradict HAYES in regard to a conversation which is quite immaterial to the case, though somewhat important to that gentleman. I will say nothing unkind of Mr. McMASTER, nor of that newspaper—the Freeman's Journal—of which he is both editor and proprietor. It is enough to inquire whether he contradicts HAYES in any matter material to this case? Does he deny the letters, or their contents? Does he explain why the accused, in one of them, says to him, "You remember STANTON, do you not?" Does he show why STANTON should apply to him and remind him of that false name? No; he merely gives a different version of the conversations which he held with HAYES. There is no apparent reason why HAYES should mistake the purport of those conversations. The $25,000 of which the accused says so much and the evidence says nothing, had no relation to Mr. McMASTER, and could not be obtained by slandering him. If HAYES be the crafty and sordid fellow which the accused seems to imagine, why should he foolishly fabricate conversations which never occurred, and with a person who, if he falsified, would be sure to come and contradict him. Let us consider a moment the relative positions of these two witnesses. If HAYES tells the truth, McMASTER entered into a disloyal, not to say treasonable, bargain, and agreed to become an accessory after the fact to all of STANTON's alias Kennedy's crimes. If he be, indeed, capable of making such a bargain, of course he would on this trial appear and deny his guilt; nor would his conscience trouble him for the perjury necessary to save his own life. I do not say that such is his character, nor that he has borne false witness. But in the scales of the law I am weighing one witness against the other. One of them either falsifies or misremembers. Which is it? HAYES has no motive to misrepresent, but every motive to represent the conversation truly. If the conversations have been truly reported, McMASTER has the strongest motive that can be furnished by the instinct of self-preservation, to falsify and contradict the report. The testimony of HAYES is corroborated on all its important points by other proof—by the contents of the letters, by the $1,500 bribe, and by the testimony of PRICE. McMASTERS, on the other hand, is wholly uncorroborated, and is by HAYES directly contradicted. You, gentlemen, will compare these witnesses, and determine which speaks the truth in regard to those conversations. But as those conversations have little bearing on the grave question of the guilt or innocence of the accused, I regard these as of no consequence, and except from a sense of duty to one of the Government witnesses, who has tried to do his duty with fidelity, and has been bitterly denounced by the accused, I should have left this contradiction quite unnoticed. The accused has summoned and examined Mrs. OWENS and ELLEN CULLEN, to show that he was quite domestic in his habits while a lodger at Mrs. OATMAN's. Their evidence, beginning after the accused left the Belmont House, ends four days before the fire. I will not question their statements, but they failed to show, and the accused fails to show, where and how he passed those four days. He knows. We do not. He could call witnesses to show; but he does not. When he left those lodgings, he did not, and Mrs. OWENS very frankly says he did not speak of leaving the city, nor state where he was going. Where did he go? That is the question which, so far as relates to Nov. 25, is answered by the testimony of PRICE and HAYES, that is to say, by the confession of the accused; and that answer is, he went, on the evening of Nov. 25, to Barnum's Museum, and the "down-town" fires, and having thus kindled a conflagration, which, for aught he knew, destroyed a thousand innocent lives and millions of dollars, worth of property, he fled as fast as steam could hurry him to Canada. The accused summoned and examined Mr. FRANK CLARK to show how he came to New-York, and how he conducted while here. But CLARK saw him only two or three times, and knew nothing of his errand, of his habits, of his conduct. He proves, however, that the accused came from a suspicious quarter, Toronto, the rendezvous of those rebel emissaries, who, not content with firing New-York, have sought to kindle the flames of war between Great Britain and the United States. He proves he came from a suspicious character, one WILLIAM L. McDONALD, who had fled, a year and a half ago, to Canada, and whom I suppose to be the person who figures as the rebel "transportation agent," on the paper read to you by the counsel for the accused, as part of his argument. He proves that the accused came with a mysterious and suspicious letter of introduction, which did not give his name, nor tell his errand; but which described him as "one of our college boys," a phrase whose meaning you may, perhaps, read in the light of that conflagration which on the night of Friday, Nov. 25, struck terror to the hearts of every loyal family in this city. The testimony of Clark further shows that KENNEDY was not the only individual thus strangely introduced by McDONALD. A fellow known as SHENAULT, who fled from New-York the same memorable night of the fires, and who was like the accused, a disguised rebel officer, was another of McDONALD's protégés, and in his society CLARKE testifies he saw the accused. Every word uttered by this witness strengthens the case presented by the prosecution, as does also the testimony of Officer BENNETT, the final witness examined by the accused. I have already mentioned the statements of BENNETT, in regard to the arrest of KENNEDY in Detroit. From them we learn how the accused was disguised; under what assumed name, false character and spurious passport he traveled; how he was armed, and how he tried to use his weapon; and what papers, disclosing his real character and connection with the rebel service were found secreted on his person. If these facts, which prove the accused to be a spy, have no direct bearing upon, yet indirectly they render probable, the charge and specification which allege his incendiary attempt. From such witnesses as CLARK and BENNETT, the accused may well recoil with the Virgilian protest. Non tali auxilio, nec defensoribus istis tempus eget. To sum up the evidence directly bearing upon charge 2d, it appears: 1st. That to two different persons, PRICE, in Canada, and HAYES, in New-York, he has confessed his guilt. 2d. That he came to New-York some weeks before the fires, disguised in both dress and name, from a suspicious place and person, with a mysterious note of introduction, without any avowed errand, upon a frivolous pretext, and for a concealed purpose; that he fled from New-York by night, having previously left his lodgings without stating where he was going; that he gives no account of himself between the 21st and 25th of November; that he refuses to state whether anything had occurred to occasion his flight; that since his arrest and confinement, he has attempted to purchase escape by enormous bribes; that he has written letters whose contents betray a knowledge of his true danger, and a consciousness of guilt; and that he procured a knife for the purpose, in the last resort, of stabbing the turnkey and effecting his escape. If this evidence leaves you in reasonable doubt on the facts, the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal. If not, your duty, however painful it may be, is equally plain—to find him guilty. A single quotation from from Dr. LIEBER, respecting the legal character of such a crime when committed by an enemy in disguise, will be a sufficient exposition of the law applicable to this transaction: "Enemies who come in a disguise from the territory of a neutral to commit robbery, or murder, have always been treated as brigands. Never has any belligerent been insolent enough to claim the protection of the laws of war for banditti who gather in the territory of a friendly Power, steal in disguise into the country of their enemy, and there commit murder and robbery." [Dr. LIEBER's Letter to Maj. BOLLES, Feb. 5, 1865.] The law of war leaves in your hands, gentlemen, the measure of punishment due to an offence like that specified under charge 2d. No words of mine are needed, and none would be adequate, to describe the enormity of such a crime. The law of Congress declares that a convicted spy must be sentenced to death. The law of war declares that the mode of death must be ignominious. If a spy be thus doomed, what penalty does he deserve who has abandoned the field of legitimate and honorable war, stolen in disguise into his enemy's country, and there attempted to set on fire and destroy, in the night-time, a great and populous city? And now, may it please the commission, my duty is done—done, I humbly trust, with an honest regard to the rights of the accused and of the prosecution, without partiality or unfairness, as without passion or excitement. In your hands I leave at once the fate of the prisoner, the sanctity of the law, and the safety of the whole community.

At the conclusion of the address, the prisoner's counsel asked permission to say a few words in behalf of the accused. He expressed his gratitude and thankful recognition of the courtesy of the court toward his client, and said that whatever might be the decision of the court, there would ever remain the remembrance of the kindness and indulgence shown to both client and counsel in the painful experiences of the trial. He submitted the following points for the consideration of the Court:

1st. The counsel for the accused assumed the ground that there was no evidence before the court to prove his character or occupation to be that of a spy, except his own admission that he was in New-York about the 1st of November in citizens dress. And inasmuch as the act of Congress of March 3, 1863, states that "all persons, &c., found lurking or acting as spies in or about any of the United States fortifications, encampments, posts, &c., &c., or elsewhere, &c., shall be triable by a general Court Martial, or Military Commission, &c." This act simply rendered him liable to be tried, but in no case did it direct that for visiting the territory of the United States, irrespective of the object in so visiting, one should be pronounced guilty. The accused asserted his object in visiting New-York to be to run the blockade and get South, and to amuse himself in the city until this opportunity offered itself, and being a prisoner just escaped from Johnson's Island, where he had been confined for upward of a year, feared to use his own name, lest he be recaptured. Hence his being here in disguise under an assumed name. 2d. The accused was innocently seeking his way home to the South by rail when arrested at Detroit, having failed to secure passage on a blockade-runner from New-York. He was in disguise, and under an assumed name to escape detection and recapture. And having signed two affidavits in Canada before the Southern authorities there, on the 21st of December, to the effect that he would make no unnecessary delay in passing through the United States, and would report to his regiment, or the first Provost-Marshal of the Confederate States Army he might be able to reach, he was so far from being on the mission of a spy, that his employers, before supplying him with the means to get South, exact an oath from him that he will make no delay in reaching his destination. He in fact makes oath not to act as a spy previous to leaving Canada. 3d. Spying being no crime against society—not an act to which moral turpitude attaches—and only a crime according to the laws and usages of war. Therefore, the liability to punishment as a spy ceases with the execution of the duty, and the return of the spy to his own lines; that is with his return beyond the jurisdiction of the offended belligerent. Hence, KENNEDY having returned to Canada and remained with the Southern authorities some weeks previous to his arrest at Detroit—even admitting that he was a spy in New-York—his liability to punishment as such has ceased. 4th. No proof that he was engaged as an incendiary in New-York on the 25th of November, except the testimony of PRICE, a Southern soldier, who turns against KENNEDY, and hopes to earn a pardon for his own sins—being in arrest under charges of the most serious nature—and HAYS, a turnkey, who strives to secure the $20,000, which he understands is to be the reward for his conviction as one of the hotel-burners. Both testify that he confessed that he fired hotels—each embarked in his attempt to secure their respective objects. Authorities are quoted to show the utter want of credibility to be given to these interested witnesses, one of whom is proven to have misstated several circumstances.

The court was then cleared for deliberation, and the result will be made known only by General Orders from the Commander of the department.

MONDAY, Feb. 27—P. M.

The following are the Weekly Averages of the old Associated Banks of this city, (exclusive of the National Banks of Commerce and Broadway,) for the week ending Feb. 25, as compared with the previous return of Feb. 18:

Decrease in Loans..............................$2,932,926
Decrease in Specie..............................609,673
Decrease in Net Deposits.......................4,401,191

	Feb. 27, 1864.	Feb. 25, 1865.	Feb. 18, 1865.

In Sub-Trea'ry.	35,410,777	28,515,380	26,293,276

The National Bank of Commerce and National Broadway Bank, of New-York, report as follows:

	Feb. 25.	Feb. 18.
Loans............	$20,539 387	$20,436,852
Specie...........	734,978	715,246
Deposits.........	12,576,178	10,377,143

The old Banks lose about four and a half millions Deposits on the present statement, while the two National Banks in the Clearing-house gain $2,200,000. There is a moderate decrease in the Specie average, on account of the daily demand through the week to pay Customs. There is more than a corresponding gain to the Specie balances in the Treasury Office. This week the latter will pay out freely on the March interest on the Public Debt. The Loans at the old Banks are down nearly three millions, but without perceptibly affecting the general ease in the Money market. There is a demand for strictly prime Merchant paper at 7@8 per cent., as in date. The Stock Exchange Brokers borrow on call, at 6 ℘ cent., and appearances, to-day, indicate a better employment for Money in this way. The market for the Railways is decidedly more speculative, and in the upward direction, though the movement is not yet general through the New-York or Western list. Mariposa, Canton and Cumberland are also taken hold of with considerable earnestness. Among the Government Gold-bearing Stocks, the 10-40 Bonds are the most active to-day, and closed in good demand at 102¼ ℘ cent.

The Gold Room was ½@2 ℘ cent. higher than on Saturday; the absence of further Military news being availed of, as a momentary advantage, by the speculators who bought heavily on Saturday. The range was 199¾@201¾ ℘ cent. The Gold rates for Bills on London for the Boston steamer are 108@108½ for Bankers; business thus far dull. The mail closes to-morrow afternoon.

At 4 o'clock the following quotations were made as compared with Saturday afternoon. The general market left off firm. Gold, 201½.

THE OFFENCE IS RANK.—We hold it inexcusable in any person, male or female, when they subject us to an annoyance which a very little trouble on their part would obviate. Especially is this the case where the unfortunate possessor of a bad breath will persist in button-holding and intruding his views upon us, to our manifest mental and physical discomfort. If these good people would use the Sozodont it would not only render them acceptable acquaintances, but would at once greatly improve their teeth and breath.

Has Nature an antidote for acquired disease? All who suffer believe they ought to and can be cured. The PLANTATION BITTERS prepared by Dr. Drake, of New-York, have no doubt benefited and cured more persons of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Sinking Weakness, General Debility, and Mental Despondency, than any other article in existence. They are composed of the purest roots and herbs, carefully prepared, to be taken as a tonic and gentle stimulant. They are adapted to any age or condition of life, and are extensively popular with mothers and persons of sedentary habits.

CONSUMPTION—CONSUMPTION.—We say to persons having consumption, in whatever stage of the disease, use Dr. WISHART's Pine Tree Tar Cordial, which is readily taken up by the blood and carried to lungs, and the healing principles of the tar act upon the inflamed surface of the lungs and stop their decay at once, and the patient's life is saved. The Pine Tree Tar Cordial has great power to dissolve the thick mucous that stops the wind-passages of the lungs and expels it from the system. The Pine Tree Tar Cordial purifies the blood and cleanses it of all scrofulous matter that is constantly breeding sores, internal and external. Salt rheum, blotches on the face, and all skin diseases, are especially cured by Dr. WISHART's Pine Tree Tar Cordial. Sold at No. 10 North Second-street, Philadelphia. Sold at HELMBOLD'S Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New-York.
